- 12a1 Subject to the customer joining the electronic banking services, communication channels and the level of service required to receive the services listed in this section below, as the Bank shall publish from time to time, the customer may, from time to time, grant the Bank direct and explicit online authorization to permit any third party online access to financial information regarding the account for the purpose of obtaining services from that same third party and/or another third party, and all in accordance with the law and the Bank's procedures as they will be from time to time ("access privilege").
- 12a2 By granting access privilege, the customer will be entitled to choose the information that will be transferred to that same third party from the information baskets that will be permissible at that time in accordance with the law and the instructions applicable to the Bank, as published on the Bank's website.
- 12a3 Access privilege shall be valid for the period defined by the customer with the relevant third party, and not more than the maximum period granted at that time by law.
- 12a4 The customer will be entitled to revoke access privilege at any time by the provision of notice to the Bank by the customer or by any third party to whom the customer has granted access privilege. Insofar as any third party to whom access privilege has been granted by the customer has notified the Bank of the revocation of the access privilege to the customer's account granted to it, the Bank will regard this as having received notice from the customer regarding revocation of the said access privilege. It is hereby clarified that insofar as the customer wishes to update an access privilege granted by him to a third party regarding information to be transferred to that same third party, he will have to revoke the access privilege that it wishes to change and to grant a new access privilege.
- 12a5 The Bank may suspend or revoke privilege of access to information regarding a customer and/or to any third party under circumstances established by law or regulation, including the event that the customer's joining the electronic banking services in the relevant communication channels is cancelled or updated in a way that does not allow account transactions through the relevant communication channels or insofar as the Bank has reasonable concern regarding a data security breach in the account for which an access privilege was granted or with the third party to whom the access privilege was granted, or where in accordance with the Bank's risk management, this is a high-risk account regarding the open banking.

12b Granting access to a joint account

Without derogating from the provisions of section 12a above, and in addition thereto, the following shall apply in a joint account.

- 12b1 Granting access to any third party will require the consent of all partners to the joint account.
- 12b2 Notwithstanding the foregoing, in a joint account in which all the partners have provided notice that signing authorization shall be for each of them separately, as stated in section 4.6.2 above, any third-party access privilege granted by one of the account partners shall be deemed to be access privilege granted by all account partners.
- 12b3 In a joint account in which all the partners in the account have provided notice that the signing authorization will be for each of them separately when one of the partners in a joint account receives access privilege, the Bank will notify all other partners in the same account whose explicit consent to the granting of the aforesaid access privilege was not received, as soon as possible and in the manner in which the Bank gives notice to these customers. Each of the other partners in the account shall be entitled to revoke the aforesaid access privilege, as specified in section 13.4 above.
- 12b4 In a joint account where one of the partners in the account gave the Bank notice regarding revocation of access privilege to any third party or the Bank received notice from the third party to whom the aforesaid access privilege was granted, regarding revocation of the access privilege that had been granted to it, the Bank will revoke the access privilege and will notify all the other partners in the joint account as soon as possible.
- 12b5 Upon joining of a customer as a partner in an existing account where access privileges have been granted, the consents given by the partners in the account prior to his joining will not be affected and will remain in full effect, and his joining the account will be considered consent to the existing access privileges, as stated, and no consent will be required of him in this regard. No change shall apply in respect of the validity of said privileges even in the case of any partner withdrawing from the joint account. However, upon the withdrawal of the partner in the account who initiated the engagement with any third party and who gave his consent to this, the aforesaid access privilege will be revoked.

- 12b6 In a joint account where not all the partners in the account have given notice that the signing authorization will be for each of them separately, and therefore positive consent of all partners in the account is required to grant access privilege (Account "F"), when consent for the granting of access privilege is given by one of the partners in the account, the Bank will permit the other partners in the account to give their consent online. If the consent of all partners in the account is not received within 5 business days, the Bank will consider the said consent for the granting of access to that same third party, as void.

12c Limitation of the Bank's liability in connection with open banking services

- 12c1 The Bank is not liable for uses made by any third party that has received access privilege to information that it received by virtue of the access privilege to the customers' account and the customer shall have no grievance and/or claim against the Bank in this matter.
- 12c2 Without derogating from any other provision in these terms and conditions, the Bank will not be liable to the customer for not granting access privilege in any case where an event has occurred that is beyond the Bank's control for which it was not possible to obtain the privileges in the Bank's system and/or implement the privileges by virtue thereof, and/or in any case of a technical and/or operational failure, and the customer shall not have any grievance and/or claim against the Bank in this matter.

- 16.2. The customer undertakes not to give any instruction and/or execute any act, withdrawal and/or debit that will cause the account to go into a debit balance, if a credit facility has not been approved for the customer, or that will cause a deviation from the credit facility or be contrary to the terms and conditions of the credit facility, if a credit facility has been approved for the customer, and to ascertain that on the date fixed for debiting the account with any charges, including unavoidable charges such as: commission and interest charges, certain credit card charges and the like, the account will have an adequate credit balance or credit facility balance to cover such charges (any act in relation to the aforesaid is hereinafter referred to as "unauthorized overdraft").
- 16.3. The Bank shall not be liable to honor any withdrawal, instruction or request of the customer that will create or increase an unauthorized overdraft. The honoring of any withdrawal, instruction or request as aforesaid or any part thereof in one case shall not be interpreted as consent to also do so in the future or in general.
- 16.4. Without derogating from any other obligation of the customer, the customer undertakes to repay any debit balance arising in the account as a result of an unauthorized overdraft, immediately upon its creation. A debit balance as aforesaid that is not paid to the Bank immediately shall bear, as of the date of its creation until actual payment in full, maximum interest accruing on a daily basis at the maximum interest rate for each day.
- 16.5. The interest as aforesaid shall be computed by the Bank on the daily balances, in accordance with the number of days that have actually elapsed from the date on which the debit balance in the account arose until the actual discharge thereof in full, computed on the basis of the exact number of days in such year (365 / 366), provided that a debit balance in FC shall be charged interest computed on the basis of a 360 day year or another basis customary at the Bank.
- 16.6. Interest computed as aforesaid shall be debited to the account and bear interest as provided above (or accrue and bear compound interest) at the end of each month or at such other interval as determined by the Bank, in its discretion. The aforesaid does not exempt the customer from his duty to immediately pay the debit balance in the account plus the interest that has accrued thereon.
- 16.7. The Bank may from time to time alter the maximum interest rate, including each of its components, the manner of computing it and the date and/or intervals for its debiting and/or accrual, on notice as required by law. It is expressed that changes as aforesaid shall apply to the customer both in respect of debit balances existing on the date of the change and in respect of any debit balance arising thereafter.
- 16.8. The provisions of this clause shall also apply if the Bank files a legal claim for collection of the debt amounts or some of them and/or takes any other steps to collect the aforesaid amounts.

17. Execution of instructions by the Bank

- 17.1. Place and form of execution
 - 17.1.1. Any instruction and act in connection with the account shall be executed by the Bank in accordance with the terms and conditions of this agreement and in accordance with the arrangements customary at the Bank at present or on the date of executing such instruction or act, subject to the provisions of any law.
 - 17.1.2. Acts in the account shall be executed in accordance with the customer's instructions as given to the Bank from time to time, provided that they are given within the time frame for giving instructions determined by the Bank from time to time and published as customary at the Bank, and subject to the provisions of this agreement and the law.
 - 17.1.3. If the Bank has assumed the execution of any act for the customer for which an execution date was not specified, the Bank shall execute it within the reasonable period of time generally required to execute such an act.
 - 17.1.4. Subject to the provisions of clause 17.3 below, a request or instruction received by the Bank after the time determined by the Bank periodically for the close of the business day at the Bank's relevant branch or ATM or relevant electronic means, or as the deadline for receiving a request or instruction of such type for execution on the same business day or FC business day, whichever is earlier, or a request or instruction received by the Bank on a day that is not a business day or FC business day or trading day (in respect of activity in securities), as the case may be, shall be deemed to have been received at the Bank on the first business day or FC business day or day on which securities are traded (in respect of activity in securities) following the date of the request thereafter.
 - 17.1.5. Unless otherwise expressly provided in relation to any banking service, if the date of any payment or debit falls on a day that is not a business day or FC business day, as the case may be, the date of the payment or debit shall be postponed to the first business day or FC business day, respectively, thereafter.
 - 17.1.6. Should the customer be entitled, subject to the provisions of this Agreement, to receive from the Bank, as beneficiary in the account, funds coming to him in the present or the future, at any time, including by virtue of payment instructions given by any third party for the customer, the account shall be credited by virtue of the said instruction on the same business day on which the funds were received at the Bank, or at a later date as agreed between the customer and the Bank ("the Credit Date"). Notwithstanding the aforesaid, it is agreed that, in circumstances that justify it, the Credit Date may occur at a later date, provided that the Bank credits the account on the earliest possible date after the above circumstances cease to exist. Without derogating from the generality of the foregoing, the Credit Date may occur at a later date, among other things, in each of the following cases:

- 17.1.7. If the Bank is under any legal impediment regarding execution of the credit on the Credit Date, including an impediment deriving from fulfilment of the provisions of the law, custom or procedure, connected with the prohibition of money laundering or of financing terror.
 - 17.1.8. If the delay is caused as a result of constraints due to special characteristics connected with the nature of the instruction given to credit the customer, including in the case of crediting the account in foreign currency and/or as a result of the activity of the correspondent bank or other third parties providing services to the Bank, whether inside or outside Israel.
 - 17.1.9. If the credit instruction is unclear or not completely understood by the Bank, or if there is a distortion, discrepancy or error in the instruction received by the Bank to credit the account.
 - 17.1.10. In the absence of any instruction to the contrary by the customer, the place and manner of executing the requested act shall be in the absolute discretion of the Bank.
- 17.2. The Bank's right not to execute certain instructions
- 17.2.1. The customer agrees that the Bank may, in its discretion and as the case may be, refuse to execute all or part of the customer's instruction, or execute it late, and regarding a payment instruction - not to execute it on reasonable grounds, on the occurrence of one or more of the following events, and that the customer shall not have any plea against the Bank in such regard:
 - 17.2.1.1. if the instruction is contrary to the provisions of any law and/or the Bank's customary procedures and/or if in the Bank's opinion there is any legal or other impediment to executing the instruction;
 - 17.2.1.2. if the instruction is received by the Bank after the deadline specified for its delivery or after the time specified for its execution;
 - 17.2.1.3. if the request is given other than through the Bank's customary form or in the manner provided herein for the giving of instructions by the customer;
 - 17.2.1.4. if the request is tainted by lack of clarity, in the Bank's discretion, and/or the absence of necessary documents and/or necessary signatures and/or the enclosure of documents tainted by any defect or the details of which are inconsistent with their description in the form with which they were enclosed;
 - 17.2.1.5. if the request is inconsistent with another request given at such time, or is given contrary to the provisions of this agreement;
 - 17.2.1.6. if the execution of the instruction might, in the Bank's opinion, result in an unauthorized overdraft, as defined above, or if the account lacks sufficient collateral for the act's execution, as required pursuant to any agreement or law and/or if in the Bank's opinion the instruction's execution in full and on time will expose it to risks that the Bank has not expressly agreed to bear;
 - 17.2.1.7. if the Bank is unable to provide the banking service the subject of the request because it is not available at the Bank at such time, or the request concerns an act that the Bank does not execute, including because it deviates from minimum amounts and/or maximum amounts specified by the Bank for such banking service, or the Bank does not execute it through the channel by which it was requested;
 - 17.2.1.8. if the Bank does not have adequate means to execute the request other than in consequence of its intentional act or negligence, such as by reason of inability to determine an exchange rate, cessation of trade and the like and/or if in the Bank's opinion the instruction cannot be executed or cannot be executed in full and on time.
 - 17.2.2. The Bank shall notify the customer of any late execution, non-execution, partial execution or proximate execution of any instruction. The aforesaid does not derogate from the customer's duty to ascertain execution, non-execution, partial execution or proximate execution of any instruction. If in the Bank's opinion the impediment to execute the customer's request as aforesaid has been removed, it may, without obligation, execute it at a later date. Regarding non-payment of a payment instruction, the Bank will notify the customer within a reasonable time in the circumstances and will set forth the grounds for the refusal and the manner in which the customer can rectify the defect that led to the refusal, if any. The Bank will not set forth for the customer the grounds for its refusal to perform the payment instruction if it believes, at its sole discretion, that giving such information might thwart the purpose for which the refusal was required, including if giving such details is forbidden by law or if, in the Bank's opinion, there is reasonable concern that the customer is committing a fraud.

17.3. The customer's right to cancel a payment instruction

The customer may cancel a payment instruction he gave the Bank by means of a written notice to the Bank up to one hour before the end of the business day on which the payment instruction was given to the Bank or up to an earlier time according to the times published by the Bank from time to time, provided the Bank shall have the possibility of halting the payment instruction in accordance with reasonable technological restrictions applicable to it in the circumstances. Payment instructions that are payable immediately, or that were given pursuant to a secured payment act, as defined in the Payment Services Law, cannot be cancelled or altered.

18. Credit balances in the account

Credit balances in the account shall not bear interest. If the Bank decides to pay interest on credit balances in a current account, the interest shall be computed by the Bank at the rate and in the manner customary at the Bank from time to time and shall be credited to the current account at such times as determined by the Bank from time to time, less the amounts that the Bank is liable to deduct at law. The aforesaid does not impose any duty on the Bank to pay any interest on all or part of a credit balance in a current account and/or to invest such credit balance in any way.

19. Crediting of the customer's account and attribution of payments

- 19.1. The Bank may credit all or part of any amount and/or payment howsoever due to the customer to any account of the customer managed at the Bank in the customer's name.
- 19.2. All the amounts credited to the account shall firstly be used to pay commission and expenses, secondly to pay the credit allocation commission owed by the customer at such time, thirdly to pay the interest and finally to reduce the other amounts that the customer owes in the account at such time.
- 19.3. The Bank may hold any amount and/or payment received prior to the payment date of all or some of the debt amounts without being under a duty to use it to reduce the debt amounts, even if the amount and/or payment were allocated for this object by the person who is entitled to allocate them.

CHAPTER FIVE: CHECKS AND BILLS

Article One: Checking Account

20. General

The customer agrees that the account's management as a checking account is subject to the approval of the Bank, in its discretion, and that the Bank does not allow checks to be drawn on every account. The customer further agrees that the Bank may also withdraw its consent to manage the account as a checking account, in its discretion. Where the Bank has agreed to the customer's request to draw checks, in Israeli currency or in foreign currency, to the debit of the account, the following provisions shall apply.

21. Check forms and their cancellation

- 21.1. For the purpose of making withdrawals from the account by way of checks, the customer must use only the check forms that he has received from the Bank or that are approved by the Bank for the purpose of withdrawals from the account, which shall bear the account number and any other detail required by law. The customer shall not alter any detail printed or impressed on any check form as aforesaid and he agrees that even if the account number impressed on the check form is deleted or altered, the account might be debited in respect thereof.
- 21.2. The customer shall adopt reasonable cautionary measures to safeguard the check forms and prevent their use by unauthorized persons. The customer shall notify the Bank immediately upon learning of any theft, loss or forgery of a check form and shall request the form's immediate cancellation, all as provided below.
- 21.3. The customer's notice as aforesaid and any instruction of the customer regarding a check form's cancellation, whether or not signed by him, shall be in writing. The instruction shall include details of the cancelled check form, including the full number of the check or check form and all the other details known to the customer. If the details of the check or check form are not known to the customer, the cancellation instruction shall be general and shall be deemed the giving of a cancellation instruction in respect of all the checks presented to the Bank as of the date on which the Bank's receives the customer's instruction (hereinafter referred to as "cancellation instruction").

- 21.4. It is expressed that if the customer may give instructions through electronic banking services or some of them, he may also give the Bank a cancellation instruction through such services. Notwithstanding the aforesaid, where the customer gives an instruction to cancel a check form other than in writing, he undertakes to furnish the Bank, within a reasonable period of time, with another cancellation instruction in writing. The aforesaid does not derogate from the Bank's duty to act reasonably in accordance with an unwritten instruction of the customer.
- 21.5. If the Bank is not given a cancellation instruction, it shall not be under any duty not to honor the check.
- 21.6. If the customer gives a cancellation instruction to the Bank after the check has been paid by the Bank, such that the debit cannot reasonably be cancelled, the customer's account shall be debited notwithstanding his cancellation instruction, subject to the law.
- 21.7. The customer acknowledges that the check's cancellation does not prevent the check being recorded as a dishonored check for the purposes of the Checks Without Cover Law, 5741-1981, if there is no cover for the check at the time of its presentation for payment.

22. Dishonoring of check

- 22.1. The drawing of a check is an instruction by the customer to withdraw monies from his account and shall be governed, in addition to the provisions of this chapter, by all the provisions relating to the withdrawal of monies from the customer's account. Without derogating from the generality of the aforesaid, the Bank shall not be liable to honor a check that gives rise to an unauthorized overdraft, as defined herein, and/or any check that should not be honored pursuant to the provisions of the law, including the Clearing House Rules, and any other provision of this agreement or any other agreement between the Bank and the customer.
- 22.2. If the account is debited in respect of a check notwithstanding the fact that the Bank has chosen not to honor the check on the grounds detailed above, the Bank may credit the account with the amount of the check and return the check. A debit balance arising in the account in the period of time between the check's presentation for payment until the date of its return by the Bank shall bear interest in accordance with the rules governing debit balances in the customer's account.

Article Two: Deposit of Checks

23. Presentation of checks for collection

- 23.1. The Bank may present checks for collection in any way acceptable to the Bank. The checks' collection expenses shall be borne by the customer and the Bank may debit the account in respect thereof.
- 23.2. The Bank may return checks that it is unable to present for payment and/or that are dishonored, for any reason, to the customer in any way it deems fit, including by sending them by ordinary mail, or continue to hold them as collateral for payment of the debt amounts, in its discretion.
- 23.3. The customer releases the Bank and its agents from any duties of a holder of a bill in respect of presentation for acceptance or payment, notice of forfeiture and the like; the Bank may, without obligation, perform one of the above duties.

24. Checks as collateral

- 24.1. In the event that the Bank holds checks that have been signed or endorsed by the customer, which have been or shall be furnished to the Bank for collection, custody, collateral or otherwise, they shall be, and shall be deemed, charged to the Bank by way of a first-ranking charge to secure the payment of any debit balance arising in any account of the customer, for any reason.
- 24.2. The Bank may sell or discount the checks, take all the legal or other steps, as it deems fit for the purpose of collecting the checks and debit the customer's account with the collection expenses. The Bank may settle with the signatories, endorsers or guarantors or any one of them, waive, release, accept partial consideration from them and use the checks' consideration for the payment of any debit balance arising in the customer's account. The acceptance of the checks or the acceptance of their full or partial consideration as aforesaid does not derogate from the customer's duty to pay the debit balances in the account.
- 24.3. The customer warrants that checks furnished by him to the Bank from time to time are in his full possession and ownership and are unencumbered by any charge, attachment and third party right of whatsoever type, and the customer may pledge them and charge them to the Bank. In the event that checks are furnished to the Bank for discounting or otherwise, and the customer has been given consideration for them and the checks have not been paid, the Bank may debit the customer with the amount of the unpaid checks.

- 24.4. The customer agrees that if the Bank decides to sell the checks itself, three days' notice of the steps that the Bank intends taking shall be deemed reasonable for the purposes of section 19(b) of the Pledge Law, 5727-1967 or any other statutory provision replacing it.
- 24.5. The customer undertakes not to create, without the prior written consent of the Bank, any pledge, assignment or other charge over the checks with rights that are preferential, equal or deferential to the rights given to the Bank pursuant to this agreement and any documents signed by the customer with the Bank.

25. Crediting

- 25.1. Any credit of an account of the customer in connection with checks for collateral or collection or to the credit of the account shall be deemed temporary and shall become final at the end of an additional three business days from the date of the credit, or on a later date that is permitted pursuant to the provisions of any law, including Bank of Israel's directives.
- 25.2. So long as the credit is temporary, the customer may not withdraw the checks' consideration. Without derogating from the aforesaid, the Bank may, at the times prescribed by law, insofar as prescribed, debit and re-debit the account with the amount of the checks that were not honored, together with the amount of its commission. The debit shall be valid retroactively from the date of the temporary credit as aforesaid (the aforesaid does not determine the material rights of the parties to the check inter se).

26. General

- 26.1. Without derogating from any other obligation, the customer agrees and undertakes as follows:
 - 26.1.1. that the customer is liable for the genuineness of all the signatures, endorsements, guarantees, dates and details on any check deposited by him or on his behalf, and for the wholeness and intactness of any check deposited by him or on his behalf, for absolute consistency between the name of the payee and the first endorsement on the check and for the deposit thereof not before its payment date, unless he has requested to deposit it as a post-dated check;
 - 26.1.2. not to deposit to the credit of the account checks the negotiability of which has been prohibited, unless the customer is the beneficiary of such check, and in addition, not to deposit to the credit of the account a check the negotiability of which has been prohibited as aforesaid, which also includes a provision prohibiting changes being made to the check, if a prohibited change has been made to it. With regard to non-negotiable checks in respect of which the customer is the beneficiary – the customer hereby empowers the Bank to act on his behalf to collect them.
- 26.2. The Bank shall be exempt from liability for any theft, loss, destruction or damage of checks and/or bills and may cancel the credit in respect thereof, where the theft, loss, destruction or damage of the checks and/or bills was occasioned other than through its negligence. The provisions of this sub-clause do not apply to checks and/or bills furnished to the Bank for collection, in respect of which the Bank shall be liable for their theft, loss, destruction or damage, unless their theft, loss, destruction or damage was occasioned in circumstances that the Bank could not have foreseen and the consequences of which it could not have prevented.
- 26.3. The provisions of this clause shall apply, mutatis mutandis, to bills that are not checks.

28. General

- 28.1. The provisions of this chapter shall apply to any case in which the Bank allows the customer to receive services through electronic banking systems, in addition to all the terms and conditions of this agreement. Furthermore, the joining of third-party systems might be subject to agreements to which the Bank is not a party, between the customer and third parties, and it is expressed that they do not derogate from the customer's obligations pursuant to the terms and conditions of this agreement.
- 28.2. The services might be at different levels, in accordance with the customer's election and/or the Bank's approval and/or the type of service, and might include: information acts, intra-banking acts, acts in favor of a third party, additional acts (hereinafter jointly referred to as "the types of service" or "the services"). If the Bank approves the customer joining systems or some of them, the services shall be provided to him fully or partially, subject to the terms and conditions of this chapter.
- 28.3. Without derogating from the provisions of this chapter, the Bank is entitled to revise from time to time the Bank's communication systems, to add to them or detract from them or to alter the communication channels and/or the systems, the technologies, the means and methods for making contact with the Bank and/or the Bank's systems and/or to receive or give information and/or to perform operations in the Bank's communication systems, at the Bank's exclusive discretion, the technological restrictions and means available to him, and the customer's signature on these Terms and Conditions and any request or document in connection with electronic banking, does not obligate the Bank to make available to its customers any of the electronic banking systems. Moreover, the Bank will stipulate from time to time, at its exclusive discretion, which operations can be performed by means of the service channels, as well as to stipulate various terms, including minimum and maximum amounts, and any other condition, as well as what information and instructions can be received via the service channels, the types of systems by which it is possible to obtain information and to give instructions or to perform certain operations, as well as what means of identification and verification are required regarding each of the electronic banking systems.

29. The services' receipt

- 29.1. The customer and/or the authorized persons as defined below may execute acts that the Bank from time to time permits to be done through the systems joined by the customer, in accordance with such types of service and in such accounts and/or deposits as elected by the customer and approved by the Bank.
- 29.2. The customer undertakes to study and familiarize himself with the systems, the way in which they operate and the possibilities of acting through them, before commencing the use thereof. The services' receipt by the customer shall be in accordance with the Bank's guidelines, as furnished from time to time. In addition to the aforesaid, a customer who uses third party systems must obtain additional guidelines from their suppliers regarding their manner and terms of use.
- 29.3. The execution of any act by the customer through the electronic banking systems shall be subject to the Bank's customary rules, terms and conditions for such type of account and such act, as are on the date the instructions are given or the customer's request approved, as though the act was executed at the Bank's branch. The customer hereby agrees that the aforesaid rules, terms and conditions shall apply to and bind him and that he shall be deemed as having signed the forms in the Bank's customary form of wording at such time for the purpose of executing such act. The customer acknowledges that he may inspect the terms and conditions applicable to each type of account, the types of services provided by the Bank and the terms and conditions of each act and/or transaction on the Internet website and at any of the Bank's branches during opening hours.
- 29.4. Before the giving of an instruction and/or transfer of a request by the customer to execute any act, the customer undertakes to ascertain that he has complied with all the terms and conditions of the agreement and the understandings with the Bank regarding such act, including the signature of any agreement or form required by the Bank for the act's execution, the existence of an adequate balance to cover such act in the relevant account and the existence of suitable collateral that the Bank has agreed to consider. The customer knows and agrees that the Bank may, without obligation, execute the act even if the customer has not complied with any of the terms and conditions of the agreement and/or understandings as aforesaid, and the customer undertakes to immediately rectify any such irregularity, including to immediately pay the Bank the amount of the unauthorized overdraft or provide additional collateral. For the avoidance of doubt, it is expressed that the Bank's consent to execute any act in the absence of the aforesaid circumstances does not oblige it to agree to execute additional acts in such cases and does not derogate from the customer's aforesaid duties.
- 29.5. The customer agrees that the giving of an instruction and/or transfer of a request to execute an act does not guarantee the actual execution thereof. Actual execution is dependent on all the terms and conditions of this agreement and any other agreement with the customer (including the presentation of documents, insofar as necessary) and is subject to the act not being likely to expose the Bank to considerable or unreasonable risk, in the Bank's discretion. In the above cases, the Bank may refuse to execute the act or execute it fully, partially or proximately, and regarding a payment instruction – not to execute it.
- 29.6. Without derogating from the generality of the aforesaid, in the event that the Bank reaches the conclusion that any instruction and/or request is tainted by a lack of clarity, or in the Bank's opinion should not be executed in its entirety without obtaining further explanations, information or details from the customer, the Bank may, at its election, refuse to act at all in accordance with such instruction and/or request or execute it only partially or act in another way that in the Bank's opinion, in the circumstances of the case, amounts to proximate execution of such instruction and/or request, and regarding a payment instruction – not to execute it..
- 29.7. "Lack of clarity" for the purposes of this clause means whether the lack of clarity relates to the contents of the instruction and/or request or the manner in which the instruction and/or request was received.
- 29.8. The Bank may refuse to execute a request transferred through any of the systems on reasonable grounds, and also having regard to circumstances existing on the date intended for its actual execution.

- 29.9. The customer agrees that whenever an instruction and/or request for the execution of any act is transferred to the Bank, the Bank may do all the acts thereby obliged, in its opinion, and any act done by the Bank as aforesaid shall bind the customer.
- 29.10. The customer hereby authorizes the Bank to debit any of his accounts in all the amounts required for the purpose of the acts' execution, including for the purpose of making transfers and paying levies and taxes pursuant to any law.

30. Finality of instruction and/or request

- 30.1. Acts executed through the systems in the giving of instructions format may not be cancelled.
- 30.2. Requests to execute acts that are transferred through the systems may be cancelled through those systems so permitting, so long as they have not been approved by the Bank.
- 30.3. It is clarified that payment instructions given via the systems may be cancelled in accordance with and subject to the provisions of Chapter C of these Terms and Conditions, regarding the customer's right to cancel a payment instruction. However, cancellation of a payment instruction given via the systems will be possible by application to the branch or the Bank's telephone help center.

31. Limitation of amounts

The Bank may from time to time determine a daily, monthly and/or other ceiling for the execution of an isolated act through the systems (hereinafter referred to as "ceilings"), in addition to the limitations imposed on their execution pursuant to the terms and conditions hereof. The customer undertakes to act only within the framework of the permitted ceilings as published by the Bank from time to time. If the Bank receives instructions or requests through the systems to execute acts that deviate from the ceilings determined by it, it may, without obligation, execute them, and such acts, if executed, shall bind the customer.

32. Additional terms and conditions applicable to the execution of any act

- 32.1. In addition to the applicability of the laws of the State of Israel as provided below, acts executed through the systems that involve international trade services shall be governed by the relevant rules published by the International Chamber of Commerce in Paris in force on the date on which the instruction to execute the act is given by the customer (and in respect of acts executed in the transfer of requests format – on the date on which the Bank executes the act, if approved).
- 32.2. The customer undertakes to furnish the Bank with all the documents and approvals required at law for the execution of any act in respect of which he gave an instruction or transferred a request for execution.

33. Dates of the services' receipt

Acts in respect of which instructions are given and/or requests transferred for their execution through the systems, if executed, shall receive the business day value (in Israeli currency or foreign currency or as specifically defined in respect of such act, as the case may be) consistent with the guidelines published by the Bank from time to time.

34. Risks, liability, and information security measures

- 34.1. The Bank uses advanced technologies and employs means in order to protect the computer systems and the information contained therein. Notwithstanding this, by virtue of the fact that they are based on software, hardware and communication networks, the systems are exposed to the risks inherent in systems of such type, including harmful software (viruses, Trojan horses and the like), on-line eavesdropping, hacking by hostile entities, impersonation of the Bank's sites or any of the systems and other on-line frauds, aberrations in the operation of the systems and/or their response times, unavailability of the systems and/or any of their services (and in each of these cases an alternative operating channel will not always be available to the customer) and the like. The Bank is investing a great deal of effort in providing protection against these risks; nonetheless, it is not possible to totally block them and there might be damages and/or losses in consequence of the realization of any of the risks, including the disclosure and/or disruption of information flowing through and/or presented in the systems and/or lack of currency thereof, the disruption of instructions and/or requests, unauthorized acts in accounts and the non-execution, faulty execution and/or late execution of any instruction and/or request. Special emphasis is placed on the aforesaid in view of the uses of the systems and/or components that are not in the Bank's control. In order to reduce the risk, the customer must pay strict attention to information security, as provided below.
- 34.2. The use of data protection software, such as the latest anti-virus software, Firewall, etc., can minimize the risks that are attendant on the use of the Internet channel. Whenever the systems are used and whenever contact is made with a support center, the customer must exercise information security and identification methods as provided in the guidelines published by the Bank from time to time. The customer undertakes to maintain absolute confidentiality in respect of codes, subscription numbers, passwords, personal identification numbers (PINs) and/or private keys and the like, including the physical means on which they are recorded, as well as the means used for identification and/or information security in the systems (hereinafter referred to as "information security means") and to keep them in his exclusive possession and inaccessible by others.

If the customer acts in the systems through authorized signatories of whom the Bank has records (hereinafter in this clause referred to as "the authorized signatories"), the customer undertakes to inform them of these terms and conditions and to ensure that each of the components of the customer and the authorized signatories acts as provided in this clause. Insofar as the customer receives information security means for the authorized signatories, he undertakes to immediately furnish each authorized signatory with the information security means intended for him, with them being closed and intact. The information security means are personal and the customer acknowledges the importance of their safeguarding by anyone on behalf of him and the authorized signatories personally, since they are used exclusively for their identification.

Without derogating from the aforesaid, it is emphasized that the storage of information security means on computer is absolutely prohibited. The customer and the authorized signatories shall be liable to replace those information security means directed by the Bank at least at the intervals determined by the Bank. Codes, passwords and the like that are decided by the customer and the authorized signatories shall be random and as difficult to guess as possible.

34.3. The customer agrees and undertakes as follows:

- 34.3.1. that he shall not transmit false information, spam and the like and mistaken and/or unreasonable information;

- 34.3.4. that any communication with or instruction given to the Bank telephonically by a person introducing himself in the course of such conversation as the customer or someone on his behalf or as one of the authorized signatories shall be treated as a communication or instruction of such customer or authorized signatory, even if it transpires that such person was not the customer or authorized signatory, provided that the Bank has adopted the cautionary measures required to prevent the abuse of telephone instructions in accordance with the Proper Conduct of Banking Business Procedures and the Bank's procedures;
- 34.3.5. that for the purpose of communicating with third party systems that use a public key (such as an EDI system) or other information relevant to communication with the Bank and receiving the services through them, the customer must furnish the Bank with the public key for decoding their transmissions and/or the aforesaid information;
- 34.3.6. that in the event of any change in the public keys and/or any of the information mentioned in sub-clause 34.3.5 above by the customer, the customer must furnish them to the Bank before commencing the use thereof;
- 34.3.7. that the setting out of the risks as detailed in this clause does not derogate from the liability of any of the parties.

35. Notice of malfunctions, irregularities, and unserviceable systems

- 35.1. Without derogating from the provisions of clause 62a below, the customer undertakes to notify the Bank immediately upon learning of any case involving abuse of the systems, or the existence of reasonable concern thereof, including exposure and/or loss and/or theft of any instrument or device by means of which he receives electronic banking services, and of the information security means and/or a vital component and/or the giving of an instruction or transfer of a request to execute any act in his accounts and/or information received or transferred without his authority, and of any case involving disruption and/or malfunction and/or mistake and/or receipt of information about any third party and/or about accounts managed in the name of others, through the systems.
- 35.2. It is hereby clarified to the customer, and he agrees that there might be cases in which it is not possible to use the systems, fully or partially, for any reason. The customer undertakes to take all reasonable steps in order to protect the Bank's equipment from abuse and/or use other than for the objects for which it was given;
- 36.2.2. the customer undertakes to maintain the Bank's equipment in good condition and inter alia to act for such purpose in accordance with the Bank's instructions;
- 36.2.3. on final cessation of the services as provided below, the customer shall be liable to return the Bank's equipment to the Bank's branch within 10 days of the services' cessation, in intact and good condition. The software shall be returned to the Bank and the customer shall destroy all the copies thereof in his possession. If the Bank's equipment is not returned to the Bank within this period of time, or is not in intact and/or good condition on its return, the customer shall be liable to pay the Bank the cost of the Bank's equipment, in accordance with the Bank's prevailing tariff, and the Bank may debit the customer's account in the aforesaid amount.

Notwithstanding the aforesaid, in exceptional cases the customer may cease receiving the services without the need for a waiting period, and the cessation shall take effect as soon as possible after the request's receipt by the branch at which the account is managed or the support center.

39. The instructions' validity

The negative interest shall be debited to the FC account at the end of each month or at any other interval customary at the Bank from time to time.

It is agreed that in the absence of adequate current balances at the time of the act's execution, the Bank may refuse to execute the act or, in the Bank's discretion, break a fixed-term FC deposit for the purpose of executing the act. - 55.3. In the event that the Bank learns that an asset the subject of any collateral as aforesaid has been damaged, might be damaged, has lost or might lose a considerable percentage of its value, or that an event has occurred that might affect the financial ability of any guarantor who or which has given the Bank a guarantee for the discharge of all or some of the amounts due to the Bank as aforesaid, the customer shall furnish the Bank, immediately upon its first demand, with additional collateral or guarantees, to the Bank's satisfaction. The provisions of this clause are in addition to and do not derogate from the Bank's right to call for the immediate payment of credit pursuant to this agreement or any other agreement with the Bank.

CHAPTER EIGHT – GENERAL

56. Debit or payment dates

Where any payment or debit falls on a day that is not a business day, the debit or payment date shall be postponed to the first business day thereafter. However, in respect of index-linked credit or deposits, if the payment or debit date falling on a day that is not a business day is also the last day of any month, the payment or debit date shall be brought forward to the last day of such month that is also a business day.

57. Use of correspondents

For the purpose of executing the customer's instructions, the Bank may use the services of correspondents and/or brokers in Israel or overseas, at its election. The customer undertakes to pay the reasonable expenses and commission that the Bank is required to pay the correspondents in connection with the execution of the customer's instructions as aforesaid.

58. Right to debit the account

Where the Bank is entitled to debit an account of the customer, it may do so whether such account has a credit balance or a debit balance or goes into a debit balance as a result of being debited as aforesaid.

59. Standing order to debit the account in favor of a third party

Where the customer requests the Bank to debit the account, from time to time, and to transfer the debit amount to the credit of accounts managed in the name of any third parties (hereinafter referred to as "the beneficiary"), whether the request is furnished to the Bank directly by the customer or by the beneficiary, the customer warrants and undertakes as follows:

- 59.1. that liability for furnishing correct, full and clear information for the purpose of executing the transfers to the beneficiary's credit rests with him, and it is agreed that such information is not examined by the Bank and that the Bank shall not be liable for any damage and/or loss that might be occasioned to him in consequence of the furnishing of erroneous, inaccurate or unclear information, save for damage occasioned as a result of the Bank's negligence;
- 59.2. that the customer has received the beneficiary's consent to the transfer and crediting of his account with the amount of the transfer, and the Bank may furnish the beneficiary with the customer's details. If the beneficiary instructs the Bank, at any time, to return the amount transferred to the customer, the Bank may credit the account with the amount of the transfer;
- 59.3. that the customer shall notify the Bank of any change in the beneficiary's details. So long as the Bank has not been furnished with notice as aforesaid, it may continue executing transfers as aforesaid, in accordance with the details in its possession;
- 59.4. that the customer and the Bank may at any time cancel the arrangement to debit the account to the beneficiary's credit pursuant to this clause, on written notice to the other party. The cancellation notice of the customer shall take effect one business day after the notice's receipt by the Bank from the customer;
- 59.5. that the customer shall be exclusively liable for any damage, loss or expenses that might be occasioned to him, the Bank, the beneficiary and/ or any third party, directly or indirectly, as a result of such transfers, save for damage deriving from the Bank's negligence or a breach of this agreement by the Bank.
- 59.6. The directives of the Bank of Israel as may be specified from time to time shall apply to an authorization for the debiting of an account as aforesaid.

59A Authorizing a third party to debit the account

The customer may authorize any third parties (the "beneficiary") to debit the account from time to time and to transfer the amount of the debit to accounts managed in the name of the beneficiary, subject to the following provisions:

- 59A.1 The customer submits to the Bank an application to establish a debit authorization, by himself or by means of the beneficiary, on the Bank's designated form or any other document delivered to the Bank, all in accordance with and subject to the law and the Bank's procedures (the "Application").
- 59A.2 In the event the Application is submitted by means of the beneficiary, the date of submission shall be considered the date on which the Application was received by the Bank.
- 59A.3 The Bank may refuse the Application to establish the debit authorization.
- 59A.4 The customer may cancel the debit authorization, at any time, by a notice to the Bank or to the beneficiary, and such notice by the beneficiary to the Bank shall be considered a notice given to the Bank by the customer, and the Bank may rely on the beneficiary's notice, and in such case the customer shall not have any claims due to the cancellation of the debit authorization. Cancellation of an authorization to debit an account by the customer shall take effect within one business day after the Bank's receipt of the cancellation notice.

- 59A.5 The customer may cancel a particular debit which he was debited by virtue of a debit authorization, by a notice given to the Bank no later than three business days after the date of the debit. The provisions of this sub-clause shall not apply to types of debit authorization and/or when terms determined by law apply.
- 59A.6 The Bank may cancel a debit authorization or not execute a payment at the beneficiary's demand by virtue of the debit authorization, on reasonable grounds.
- 59A.7 A debit authorization that has not been used for 24 months from the date of confirmation or from the date of the last debit made by virtue thereof - shall expire.

60. Furnishing of details and databases

- 60.1. The customer acknowledges that for the purpose of the account's opening and management, he will be required to furnish the Bank with identification details of each of the components of the customer, the furnishing of some of the details being required by law and the furnishing of other details to the Bank being dependent on his will and consent. The customer shall also be required, by law, to furnish the Bank with details as aforesaid of entities related to the customer, including attorneys, beneficiaries and guarantors ("related entities"). The details furnished by the customer to the Bank ("the details") are required by the Bank for its customer service work and for the purpose of making decisions regarding the provision of the service, the scope of the service and the manner of providing it. The customer acknowledges that he has received the related entities' consent to the furnishing of details as aforesaid.
- 60.2. The customer acknowledges and agrees that the details and all the information and balances in connection with the account shall be kept, in whole or in part, in databases of the Bank and/or someone acting on its behalf (hereinafter referred to as "information"). The Bank shall keep the information secret, subject to the following provisions:
 - 60.2.1. the Bank may use of the information, including for the purpose of offering additional services to the customer and making decisions in connection with the relationship with the customer and the related entities, subject to the Bank's duty of confidentiality; What is stated in this section shall also apply in a situation where the Bank has decided, by virtue of its authority granted to it in section 68 below, to assign and/or transfer and/or sell and/or endorse the customer's rights and obligations according to this agreement, in whole or in part to any other person or entity.
 - 60.2.2. the Bank may use of the information in connection with legal proceedings that are being conducted by the Bank against the customer or the related entities, or vice versa;
 - 60.2.3. without derogating from the aforesaid, the customer agrees that the Bank may furnish the information to any attorney in the account; to any judicial authority or other judicial or quasi-judicial entity (including in the framework of legal proceedings) and/or competent authority, in Israel or overseas, on its demand, and to any person or entity who or which has been empowered pursuant to the law by such an authority; to any person or body in accordance with the provisions of any law; to anyone whom the customer or the attorney have agreed to the information being transferred; to any guarantor for the customer or the account, including anyone who has given the Bank collateral to secure repayment of the debt amounts in the account; to any agent of the Bank, including an advocate acting on behalf of the Bank or an accountant who is auditing the Banks books (subject to the duty of confidentiality and the law); and to a subsidiary of the Bank – provided that such is intended to protect a legitimate interest of the Bank (subject to the duty of confidentiality and the law).

The Bank may furnish details in accordance with the above clauses without first turning to the customer and without informing him that it is furnishing the details, whether prior to or after furnishing them.

61A. Suspension of use of a means of payment

- 61A.1 The customer may, at any time, request the Bank to suspend the use of any means of payment issued to the customer by the Bank (including suspension of a debit authorization), for a period to be determined by the customer, which shall not exceed 14 days from the date of the notice, or for a longer period, to the extent the Bank shall enable it from time to time, regarding certain types of means of payment. The customer's request to suspend the means of payment shall be given to the bank in a way in which the Bank shall direct, from time to time, regarding the various types of means of payment, in any way in which the Bank may direct, as aforesaid.

- 61A.2 The customer undertakes not to make use of the suspended means of payment in the suspension period.
- 61A.3 The Bank may suspend the use of any means of payment, if it is required to do so under the provisions of any law, as well as on reasonable grounds, including the concern for damage to security of means of payment; concern for misuse of the means of payment or fraud; real concern that the customer will not fulfill his obligations to the Bank; reasonable concern that the means of payment might be used to commit an offense or cause the Bank to breach the provisions of the law; in any case of malfunction, distortion, breakdown or inquiry connected with use of the means of payment in the circumstances of the case and/or the type of means of payment; in any other case in which, at the Bank's discretion, further use of the means of payment might cause damage to the customer or to the Bank.
- 61A.4 It is clarified that suspension of the use of the means of payment, as set forth in this clause above, whether on the initiative of the customer or of the Bank, shall not detract from the validity of any of the customer's present and future debits and credits via the suspended means of payment, regarding which the payment instructions relating thereto were given before the date of suspension of use of the above means of payment, and after the end of the suspension period.
- 61A.5 From the moment a means of payment is suspended until removal of such suspension, the customer will not be able to perform payment operations via the said means of payment, and to the extent payment instructions were given by that means of payment - they shall be rejected. In certain cases, taking into account, inter alia, of the type of means of payment, the technological restrictions existing in the Bank and the circumstances of the case, suspension of use of a means of payment could lead to suspension of further services provided to the customer via the suspended means of payment, whether payment services or otherwise (such as: viewing information, giving instructions other than payment instructions, and the like), and the customer will have no claim vis-à-vis the Bank in this matter.

62A Theft or loss of a vital component or misuse of a means of payment

- 62A.1 It is the customer's responsibility to use all security means required in order to protect the means of payment and the vital component that are issued to him from time to time, and to keep them confidential, including not to make them available for the use of another, and to act as stipulated in Clause 34 of these Terms and Conditions, and in accordance with the information security policy published from time to time by the Bank.
- 62A.2 The customer shall notify the Bank, as soon as he learns of it, of the theft or loss of the vital component in the means of payment or of any misuse of the means of payment (the "Notice"), by any method which the Bank shall enable the customer from time to time, and he shall not be responsible for misuse of the means of payment after he has given the Notice, and the Bank shall not be responsible for any direct or indirect damage to the customer and/or any third parties if it has acted in good faith and without negligence pursuant to the Notice.
- 62A.3 The customer shall give the Bank the particulars of the circumstances of the theft or the loss or the misuse, as the case may be, of the payment operations made by misuse of the means of payment and any additional relevant information that may be required in the circumstances, and shall also take all reasonable steps to assist in minimizing the damage, and any other measures that may be requested by the Bank.
- 62A.4 The Bank may charge the customer for any payment operation via the means of payment regarding which the Notice was given, that was performed up to the date of giving the said Notice, up to an amount that is the lower of the following: (a) the amount by which the account was debited during the misuse; and (b) a fixed amount of NIS 75, plus NIS 30 for each day that passes in which the customer or anyone on his behalf knew of the loss or misuse (as the case may be) up to the date of delivery of the Notice. Notwithstanding the aforesaid, if the Notice is given within 30 days after the initial misuse of the means of payment, the amount of the charge shall not exceed NIS 450. The amounts set forth in this clause above may be altered by an order of the Minister of Justice ("Limit of Liability").
- 62A.5 The aforesaid Limit of Liability shall not apply, and the Bank may debit the account regarding any payment operation performed prior to giving the Notice to the Bank if: (a) the customer acted with fraudulent intent in connection with the misuse of the means of payment, and in such case the customer shall be exclusively responsible for the misuse of the means of payment; and (b) the means of payment was used after the customer made the vital component in the means of payment available to another person, whether or not the use was made with his knowledge. However, the provisions of this clause shall not apply if one of the following occurs: (1) the vital component in the means of payment was made available to another person in reasonable circumstances for the purpose of safeguarding only, or was made available to the beneficiary in order to give payment instructions by means of the beneficiary; or (2) the misuse occurred after the vital component in the means of payment that was made available to the other person was stolen from that person or if he lost it.

62A.6 The customer shall not be responsible for misuse of any means of payment in the suspension period thereof, or after the date on which he returned the relevant means of payment to the Bank or after closing the account.

62A.7 The customer shall not be responsible for any misuse of a means of payment, excluding as set forth in this Clause 62.A above, while it is clarified that the provisions of this Clause 62.A shall not apply to an authorization to debit the account.

62B Responsibility for defect in executing a payment instruction

62B.1 The Bank shall not be liable for any damage or expense that may be incurred, if any, to the customer and/or any third party due to a defect in executing a payment operation, that was caused by any action or omission of the customer and/or anyone on his behalf and/or by another provider of payment services.

62B.2 A payment operation performed on the basis of the specific identification code of the beneficiary as given by the customer, whether given alone or with other particulars, shall be considered an action performed as required regarding the identity of the beneficiary, and the Bank shall not bear any liability for any damage that might be incurred to the customer, and the customer shall indemnify and compensate the Bank for any damage, loss and expense, of any kind or sort, whether direct or indirect, whether foreseen or unforeseen, that may be incurred to the Bank as a result of a demand, complaint or claim by any third party due to the Bank's failure to perform a payment operation or any defect in the performance thereof, provided that the said failure to perform or the defect were caused due to the Bank's reliance on the erroneous specific identity code given to the Bank by the customer.

Section 31 of the Payment Services Law which stipulates that no liability shall be incurred by the customer due to misuse of the means of payment, excluding that set forth in Chapter F of the Payment Services Law.

customer to the Bank, including the Bank's advocates' professional fees, as well as stamping expenses, if any, shall be borne by the customer. The amount of the professional fees shall be as determined in a judgment or decision of the court. In the event of execution proceedings, if specific advocates' professional fees have not been determined, the minimum professional fees pursuant to section 81 of the Chamber of Advocates Law, 5721-1961 shall apply, and in any other case – as agreed between the Bank and the customer. Notwithstanding the aforesaid, direct legal costs (advocates' professional fees) in respect of litigation in proceedings as aforesaid that are being conducted before a court or execution office shall only be borne in accordance with the order of the court or execution authority, unless the customer has requested (expressly or impliedly) the Bank's intervention in the proceeding, in which case the costs of the proceeding shall be borne in full by the customer.
- 63.5. For the avoidance of doubt, it is expressed that the Bank's right to debit the account shall apply in respect of any amount due to the Bank from the customer pursuant to this clause. In addition to the aforesaid, the Bank may debit any account of the customer with it, whether or not mentioned in this agreement, with any amount due to it from the customer as a result of any claim, demand or proceeding as mentioned above.

- 65.1. in any circumstances in which the Bank is exempt from liability at law, including by reason of the fact that it acted in accordance with an order, recommendation, procedure or directive given to it by Bank of Israel or another competent authority, even if it transpires that Bank of Israel or such authority were not competent to give such order, recommendation, procedure or directive; by reason of frustration in the widest sense known at law; and/or in cases in which the damage is a result of a negligent or intentional act of the customer or a breach by the customer of an agreement between the customer and the Bank;
- 65.2. as a direct result of circumstances over which the Bank has no control or during the existence of such circumstances, provided that the Bank makes every reasonable effort to perform its obligations;
- 65.3. as a result of the Bank's reasonable use of various communication means, such as mail, telephone, facsimile or any other delivery or communication method, whether private or public, and as a result of any loss, delay, misunderstanding, damage or fault by reason of use as aforesaid, provided that the Bank shall not be exempt from the damage, loss or expense if it occurred as a result of the Bank's negligence;
- 65.4. in the event that the damage is a result of a mistake of someone other than the Bank, or of a defect, invalidity, incorrect description or condition, incompleteness of the signature, if not apparent ex facie on a reasonable inspection of the document, and of any good faith mistake in any service, regarding

With the Bank's consent, the customer may also give the Bank an e-mail address as his mailing address, which shall for all intents and purposes be deemed the customer's address. The Bank may send or deliver any notice, demand, account copy or other document of whatsoever type (including any negotiable document) to the customer by ordinary mail or otherwise, at its election (including by ATM or computer terminal or e-mail), and if a document as aforesaid is sent to the customer by ordinary mail in accordance with his aforesaid address, it shall be deemed to have been received by him within 72 hours of being mailed. 68. Transfer of rights

The customer may not transfer and/or encumber and/or assign and/or endorse his rights or obligations pursuant to this agreement and/or the documents mentioned therein or relating thereto and/or in an account pursuant hereto to another without the prior written consent of the Bank. Without derogating from the foregoing, it is agreed that an assignment and/or sale and/or endorsement will not be deemed to constitute prejudice to the customer's rights.

It is hereby agreed by the customer that the Bank will be entitled to disclose to any potential assignee or transferee, or to any other person or body, including a person or body wishing to enter into a contract with the Bank in connection with credit facilities or any part thereof, particulars about the customer and details relating to the customer's rights and obligations, including any credit facilities that have been made available to him.

69. Waivers and/or compromises

A waiver by the Bank of any previous breach and/or non-performance of any of the customer's obligations pursuant to this agreement and/or the grant of an extension by the Bank in relation to any right vested in it pursuant to any document, or pursuant to any law, shall not give the customer cause to continue the breach or non-performance of the obligation, shall not constitute cause for a new or additional breach of any of the conditions of this agreement and shall not be interpreted as a waiver of such right.

- 69.2. A waiver by the Bank and any compromise with the customer shall not bind the Bank, unless made in writing.

70. Commission and expenses

- 70.2.3. The customer hereby agrees and approves to the Bank to deduct any debt, charge, expense, cost or commission due now or in the future from the customer to the Bank, including under these Terms and Conditions, from funds due to the customer, as the Beneficiary in the account, from the Bank, at any time and from time to time, including pursuant to an instruction given by a third party to transfer funds to the account.

- 71.2. Without derogating from the generality of the aforesaid, if the customer is liable for the payment of taxes, levies and compulsory payments pursuant to any law, the Bank shall deduct this amount at source in accordance with the law, or debit the account with any amount required for the payment of any taxes, unless the customer furnishes the Bank, in advance, with a suitable certificate from the authorities regarding an exemption from deduction as aforesaid.
- 71.3. All the amounts of whatsoever type that are due to the Bank from time to time pursuant to this agreement shall be paid by the customer to the Bank in full, after all the taxes, as such expression is defined above, in respect thereof have been paid and deducted. Without derogating from the aforesaid, it is expressed that where any amounts due from the customer to the Bank as aforesaid are subject to the payment of taxes, they shall be increased respectively such that after payment of the taxes, the Bank shall be left with all the amounts due to it from the customer pursuant to this agreement, in full.
- 71.4. Without derogating from the aforesaid, where any duty, condition or restriction is imposed on the Bank pursuant to the law in any country, or by virtue of a directive or agreement made by the Bank with Bank of Israel including those concerning taxation, provisions, special deposits, cash ratio, liquidity or requirements in relation to capital adequacy or other forms of fiscal, monetary or regulatory control, or any duty, condition or restriction in connection with international financial markets, such that the Bank determines that as a result of the aforesaid the cost to the Bank in connection with the service's provision will increase, the Bank may compute the additional cost in respect of this duty and add it as an expense of the customer, in addition to any other expense, commission or interest.
- 71.5. The Bank may debit the account from time to time with all the aforesaid amounts, and in addition debit the customer with the aforesaid amounts by deducting them from any amount due to the customer in connection with any transaction.
- 71.6. Without derogating from the aforesaid, the Bank may deduct any tax, payment and fee as aforesaid from any payment due to the customer, without notice to the customer.

72. Change in the account holder's details

The customer warrants that all the details furnished by him to the Bank are correct and accurate. The customer undertakes to notify the Bank immediately upon any change in one or more of these details, including any change in his address, the telephone numbers given by him to the Bank, electronic mail address, as well as any data serving as a verifying and identifying detail of the customer.

73. Technical changes

73.1. The Bank may change the number of the account and/or any prefix, or make any other technical change in the account, if in its opinion such is necessary or desirable for any reason. The customer acknowledges that the validity of the terms and conditions of this agreement shall not be affected in the event of a change as aforesaid.

73.2. In addition, the Bank may, on notice to the customer, transfer the balance in the account, whether it is a credit balance or a debit balance, to another account that shall be opened in the customer's name for such purpose, if the Bank believes that such is necessary for office, administrative or technical reasons.

74. Rectification of mistakes

If the Bank believes that any act was mistakenly entered in the account, or that there was a mistake in any entry in the account, including in consequence of a mistaken amount, mistaken date, mistaken rate, mistaken nominal value and the like, or that any act was not entered in the account in consequence of mistake, the Bank may at any time rectify the mistake and its consequences. The rectification shall be done by debiting and/or crediting the account, as the case may be and in the circumstances of the case, and subject to Bank of Israel's directives.

75. Change of terms and conditions

The Bank may from time to time change the terms and conditions regulating the customer's activity at the Bank, whether they are included in this agreement or in any other document and/or add new terms and/or conditions and/or new provisions, provided that it notifies the customer thereof in advance, in such manner as determined by it, in its discretion, at the times prescribed by law. If the customer notifies the Bank in writing that he does not agree to the change in the terms and conditions as aforesaid, the Bank may stop providing him with all or some of the banking services, and in such context call for the immediate payment of credit provided to the customer, cancel credit facilities and even close the account completely.

76. The account's closure or reducing and limiting the scope of services

76.1. The Bank may at any time, by a written notice to the customer, close the account or cease one or more of the spheres of activity and/or service channels provided to the customer pursuant to this agreement or strip the customer of his right to act in the account through checks or similar documents (hereinafter - "Termination of Service by the Bank"), including in cases in which the customer has failed to furnish the Bank with a declaration he was obliged to give according to any law or agreement and/or if such declaration has been found to be incorrect and/or if the Bank has demanded to receive explanations and documents regarding the nature and essence of an operation in the account or in regard to the source of money that has been credited to the account or regarding the character of the customer's business, and the customer has failed to provide detailed explanations to the Bank's satisfaction. Termination of Service by the Bank shall take effect 45 days after delivery of the Bank's notice (or at a later date as stipulated in the Bank's notice). Notwithstanding the aforesaid, it is clarified that the Bank is entitled to terminate the service immediately (including closing the account) if, in the Bank's opinion, irregular circumstances are fulfilled that justify immediate Termination of the Service by the Bank as aforesaid. The customer undertakes to return to the Bank all of the checkbooks, credit cards, and debit cards of any kind in his possession, at the time of closing the account. In the event of the account's closure – by the Bank or by the customer – any debt or liability to the Bank in the account, as well as the interest and the maximum interest, if any, which has accrued to date, shall be discharged immediately upon the account's closure. The operations described above shall be performed in accordance with the procedures that have been laid down or will be laid down by the Bank of Israel. Details can be obtained at the branch of the Bank at which the account is maintained. Without derogating from the aforesaid in this clause, to the extent the customer does not instruct the Bank to close the account after termination of receipt of the specific services for which he engaged with the Bank under these Terms and Conditions and/or other special terms, the Bank shall be entitled to close the account as provided in this Clause 76.1 above and in the Bank's procedures, as they shall be from time to time.

- 76.2. The customer is entitled at any time to terminate his contractual arrangement pursuant to these Terms and Conditions and/or the other agreements by virtue of which he may engage with the Bank from time to time, if any, for any reason whatsoever, by a written notice to the Bank. - 76.3. It is hereby agreed by the customer that, to the extent the Bank issues a means of payment to the customer, and in these Terms and Conditions and/or special terms which the customer shall sign from time to time a date is set for the end of the contract regarding such means of payment ("End of the Term of the Contract"), it will be possible to renew the contract without executing a new contract if, at the End of the Term of the Contract, the Bank makes a new means of payment available to the customer, and the previous contract shall be considered to have been renewed on the same terms (as revised from time to time, if any, as provided in these Terms and Conditions).

77. Status of the signatories to this agreement

- 77.1. The provisions of this agreement shall apply to all the components of the customer who have actually signed it, jointly and severally. Any mention of "customer" or "customers" in this agreement shall only refer to those components of the customer who have actually signed it.
- 77.2. In the event that any account or deposit is managed in the name of more than one customer, everything provided in respect of them, insofar as referring to the customer, shall be deemed as having been written in the plural.

78. Furnishing of information to the authorities

- 78.1. The customer agrees that notwithstanding the duty for secrecy imposed on the Bank with regard to operations in the bank account, the Bank will be entitled to pass on any information, including information with respect to the customer's holdings of securities, which may be demanded according to the foreign law or in accordance with Israeli law, to the Stock Exchange, to the Securities Authority and to any other authority (including the tax authorities and any competent authority according to the Prohibition of Money Laundering Law, 5760-2000 and any law which may replace that law), whether in Israel or abroad, and in particular, and without derogating from the foregoing, to tax authorities and authorities for the prohibition of money laundering and terrorism financing abroad, whether on a current basis or according to demand. The customer hereby waives any duty of secrecy in this connection, and expressly agrees that the passing on of such report by the Bank will not be deemed to be a violation of the duty for banking secrecy or any other obligation the Bank is likely to have to the customer, and the customer will have no allegation or claim against the Bank in connection with the passing on of such information.
- 78.2. The customer agrees that, upon presentation of a demand for rendering a report with respect to his holdings of securities in accordance with the Israeli law or according to any foreign law, he undertakes to furnish the Bank and/or any body or authority concerned in the matter, including tax authorities, any report and any information that is requested by such authority.
- 78.3. Without derogating from the foregoing, the customer hereby undertakes to furnish the Bank with all the information that may be required, if required, by the Bank, for purposes of providing the Bank's report in accordance with any law, including a report to the Bank of Israel in accordance with the Bank of Israel Order (Information regarding Transactions in Foreign Currency Derivatives and Short-term Debt Instruments), 5771-2011, and/or pursuant to the Bank of Israel Order (Information regarding Developments in the Foreign Currency Market in Israel), 5770-2010, all in the format, with the particulars and at the times specified therein, and in accordance with the definition of the terms appearing therein, including, inter alia, any information concerning a transaction or transactions of an Israeli resident or a foreign resident with the Bank or through the Bank, whether for himself or for others, in foreign currency derivatives, the cumulative par value of which, in all the customer's accounts with financial brokers is equivalent to 10 million dollars or more in a single day, or concerning a transaction in options in any amount, or concerning a transaction or transactions of a foreign resident, with the Bank or through the Bank, whether for himself or for others, in debt instruments, including buyback transactions in securities, the cumulative gross par value of which, in all the customer's accounts with financial brokers is equivalent to 10 million new shekels or more in a single day.

Without derogating from the generality of the aforesaid, the Bank may determine minimum and maximum amounts for the acceptance of deposits of any type from the customer, and it may also determine that only deposits in certain currencies shall be accepted, and the Bank may at any time cease offering a certain type of deposit, provided that such shall not prejudice the rights of the customer whose monies are placed in the deposit.

82. Day of deposit

Any deposit made after the end of the business day, as customary at the Bank on the deposit date, shall be deemed a deposit made on the following business day. The base rate, the base index and the interest rate shall be determined accordingly.

83. Linkage

A deposit shall not bear linkage unless otherwise agreed with the customer or otherwise provided in this agreement.

84. The interest rate and its computation

A deposit shall not bear interest unless otherwise agreed with the customer. Where the Bank and the customer have agreed that a deposit shall bear interest, the interest shall be in accordance with the type, rate and terms specified in the deposit form, and if not agreed with the customer – in accordance with the interest rate and type customary at the Bank for such type of deposit, term and graduation in accordance with the interest table.

The interest on a deposit (if any) shall be computed in accordance with the actual number of days that have elapsed from the deposit date until the end of the deposit term or the withdrawal date (whichever is earlier), in relation to the exact number of days in each year (365 or 366). In the case of a variable interest shekel deposit, the variable interest shall change automatically and without further notice to the customer whenever there is a change in the prime interest or the anchor interest, in accordance with the change in the prime interest or the anchor interest.

In the case of a variable interest FC deposit, the interest shall change in each interest term, in accordance with the following computation: at the beginning of each interest term the variable interest shall be computed on the basis of the relevant Foreign Currency interest rate anchor for the bank business day falling two business days prior to the day on which the interest term commences, or, at the Bank's election, the relevant Foreign Currency interest rate anchor interest rate applicable on the first day of the interest term, less (plus) the margin. The aforesaid interest rate shall apply in respect of the entire interest term.

85. Attribution of payments

All the amounts credited to the deposit, in respect of a payment of the customer or in any other way, shall firstly be used to pay the Bank's expenses and commission, if any.

86. The deposit term

The deposit shall be for the term specified in the deposit form, and if no term has been agreed upon – in the Bank's discretion.

87. Crediting of interest and linkage and the deposit's expiry

87.1. The interest and linkage (if any) accruing on the deposit as aforesaid shall be paid at the end of the interest term or at the end of the deposit term, as agreed with the customer (and if not agreed, at the Bank's election), by way of crediting the account, less any tax or payment applicable to them at any time pursuant to the law.

87.2. On the deposit term's expiry, the Bank shall act in accordance with the customer's instructions, provided that they are given three days prior to the deposit term's expiry, or in accordance with the provisions of the law, if any.

87.3. In the absence of instructions as aforesaid, the amount in the deposit that has expired, in shekels or in FC, as the case may be, shall be transferred to the customer's account at the Bank. However, the Bank may, without obligation, treat the amount in the deposit that has expired as being deposited for an additional identical term or for a short additional term – whichever is closer to the original deposit term, and so on and so forth, on such terms and conditions and at such interest rate as determined by the Bank from time to time, except in a case in which regulatory provisions apply that compel the investment of the money in a different way. Any amount of principal and/or interest and/or linkage and/or any other payment that is credited to the customer in the account at the end of the deposit term and/or after breakage and/or during the deposit term shall not bear interest and/or linkage, subject to the binding provisions of the law.

- 87.4. Where the payment date of any amount on account of the deposit, including payment on account of linkage, interest and/or principal, or the date of executing any act to the debit or credit of the deposit and/or in respect of the deposit, falls on a day that is not a business day, the payment shall be made or act executed on the first business day thereafter, subject to the provisions of any law. A change in the payment date pursuant to this clause shall not result in a change in the linkage computation, while the interest (insofar as agreed on) shall be paid in accordance with the actual number of days of the deposit. Everything stated above in this clause shall apply, unless otherwise specifically provided in the deposit form.

88. The deposit's withdrawal and early breakage

- 88.1. The customer may not withdraw the deposit or any part thereof before its payment date or renewal date, as the case may be. The Bank may, in its exclusive discretion and on such terms and conditions as it deems fit, allow the customer to withdraw the deposit or part thereof before the aforesaid dates (hereinafter referred to as "breakage").
- 88.2. It is agreed that if the Bank agrees to breakage as aforesaid, the Bank may charge the customer a breakage fine in such amount as customary at the Bank on the breakage date, as well as expenses and commission, and the customer shall not be entitled to interest and/or positive linkage paid and/or accruing to him in respect of the deposit, and in the case of a renewable deposit - in respect of the last deposit term. Any payments that have been made to the customer on account of the interest and/or positive linkage shall be returned to the customer by the Bank, and without derogating from the aforesaid, the Bank may deduct them or set them off from the payment to the customer. The customer acknowledges that in the event of breakage as aforesaid, he might receive even less than the original amount deposited by him.

89. Special set-off rights

In addition to the Bank's rights of set-off and lien pursuant to the law and this agreement, if the customer has signed a special deed of set-off and/or bond and/or deed of pledge in respect of the deposit, all his rights in the relevant deposit shall be subject to the Bank's rights pursuant to the special deed of set-off and/or bond and/or deed of pledge.

90. Charges and lien

Where the deposit monies are charged to the Bank and/or are subject to a lien, and so long as they are charged or subject to a lien as aforesaid, the customer may not do any act in the account (including the withdrawal of monies) without the prior, written and signed consent of the Bank, and the Bank shall not be liable to execute any act in the account, including the transfer of monies to customers or to their credit, without prejudice to any other right available to the Bank.

Any charge and lien over the deposit monies shall also apply to any account of the customers to which the deposit monies, deposit profits and/or payments in respect thereof are transferred.

91. Miscellaneous

- 91.1. If pursuant to any law the customer is liable for the payment of taxes, levies and compulsory payments in respect of any deposit, the Bank shall deduct this amount at source in accordance with the law, or debit the account with any amount required for payment of tax, unless the customer furnishes the Bank with a suitable certificate from the authorities regarding full or partial exemption from deduction as aforesaid, in which case the Bank shall act accordingly.
- 91.2. With the prior consent of the customer, the Bank may consolidate deposits of the same type and in the same currency, in accordance with the Bank's prevailing rules from time to time.
- 91.3. The customer's rights in the deposit may not be transferred, assigned and/or charged, other than to the credit and order of the Bank, except with the prior written consent of the Bank, and subject to the terms and conditions of such consent and the provisions of any law.

The interest on the renewed deposit shall be fixed or variable, as agreed at the time of the original deposit.
 - 93.3.2. Unless the Bank is instructed otherwise in writing, at the end of each deposit term the interest, less the compulsory payments as defined in these terms and conditions, shall be added to the renewed deposit's principal.
 - 93.3.3. The customer agrees that the Bank may refuse to renew a fixed-term deposit if on the renewal date deposits of such type are not customary at the Bank or for any other reasonable cause, in which case the deposit shall be paid to the customer's account or in accordance with his instructions and shall not bear any interest and/or linkage, subject to the binding provisions of the law.

If at any time the balance of the investment in the current savings deposit falls below the minimum amount, the Bank may transfer the balance to the customer's account.
- 94.3. The rate of the interest on the balance in the current savings deposit is fixed for the day of deposit only and likely to vary in accordance with the interest table prevailing at the Bank from time to time, having regard to the balance in the current savings deposit, and the Bank may change the interest rate at any time, including daily.
- 94.4. If the Bank has determined an interest rate and/or agreed an interest rate with the customer that is different from the rate in the interest table in respect of a certain current savings deposit and/or current savings deposit balance ("special interest rate"), the special interest rate shall bind the Bank for one day only, and the Bank may change the interest thereafter at any time, in accordance with the interest table as provided above.
- 94.5. Notwithstanding the aforesaid, the Bank may, in its exclusive discretion, determine different interest rates for different deposit amounts that were deposited separately (and that constitute the credit balance in the current savings deposit), in which case each amount shall be treated as a separate and independent deposit and shall be governed by the aforesaid terms and conditions, mutatis mutandis.
- 94.6. The interest on a current savings deposit shall be computed in accordance with the actual number of days from the deposit date until the withdrawal date relative to the exact number of days in such year (365 in an ordinary year), with daily compound interest.

- 94.7. The deposit may be withdrawn in whole or in part on any business day. The interest shall be paid to the account on the date of the deposit's withdrawal, in whole or in part, pro rata to the amount of the principal that is withdrawn.
- 94.8. The Bank may change the terms and conditions of a current savings deposit or cease offering it. Suitable notice shall be given by the Bank. In such case, the balance in the current savings deposit shall be paid to the account.

If the payment date of the deposit falls on a day that is not an FC business day or a day on which Bank of Israel does not publish a representative rate, the new rate shall be computed in accordance with the representative rate published on the last business day prior to the payment date.

- 100.5. The customer undertakes to ensure that the account is only debited within the scope of the credit facility and not to deviate from it without the prior written consent of the Bank and to act in the account only in accordance with the terms and conditions of the credit request and this agreement.

It is expressed that the Bank's right to maximum interest as aforesaid and the actual collection thereof or debiting of the account or another account of the customer in respect thereof shall not derogate from the Bank's right to take (or continue taking) all the steps available to it for the purpose of collecting any amount not paid to it by the customer pursuant to the terms and conditions of the agreement with the customer. The provisions of this sub-clause shall also apply if the Bank files a legal claim for collection of the amounts due to it in accordance with the provisions of this agreement, and the customer agrees to the judicial authority ordering it to pay maximum interest as aforesaid.

CHAPTER FOUR: BANK GUARANTEES

112. Provisions governing guarantees and guarantee requests

- 112.1. A guarantee in favor of a third party that is issued by the Bank at the customer's request shall be governed by the provisions of the guarantee request, as defined below, the provisions of this chapter, the provisions relating to credit in this agreement and the provisions of this agreement and any other agreement between the customer and the Bank. In the event of any irreconcilable discrepancy, the provisions shall apply in order noted above (firstly the provisions of the guarantee request shall prevail, and so on and so forth).
- 112.2. For the purposes of this agreement, "credit" includes a guarantee and any other undertaking issued by the Bank in connection with the guarantee.
- 112.3. Where the customer has asked the Bank to issue a guarantee in favor of any third party, he shall submit a written request to the Bank, in the Bank's customary form of wording, and the Bank may, in its exclusive discretion, refuse to allow the request, approve the request or approve it subject to such terms and conditions as it deems fit. The request, insofar as approved by the Bank and subject to the terms and conditions of its approval, shall be referred to as a "guarantee request". For the purposes of this clause, the furnishing of the guarantee to the customer shall be deemed approval of the guarantee request by the Bank, in accordance with its terms and conditions, additional terms and conditions specified by the Bank and the provisions of this agreement.

113. The guarantee's form of wording

The guarantee shall be in the Bank's form of wording and on such terms and conditions as detailed in the guarantee request or, if the Bank agrees, in the form of wording requested by the customer (in which case the customer shall bear full liability for the form of wording requested by him).

114. The guarantee's independence

- 114.1. The customer agrees that the Bank's obligations pursuant to any guarantee issued at the customer's request constitute irrevocable banking obligations on the part of the Bank vis-à-vis third parties, such that the withdrawal of the monies and debiting of the account pursuant to the guarantee cannot be prevented by the Bank.

- 114.2. It is further agreed that the Bank's obligations pursuant to the guarantee are autonomous and independent of any agreements made between the customer and/or another / others and the beneficiary/ies, or of undertakings given by the customer and/or another / others vis-à-vis the beneficiaries, or the fulfillment of any conditions by the beneficiary/ies – save for the terms and conditions expressly noted in the guarantee itself, and no payment by or on behalf of the Bank to the beneficiary/ies shall require the customer's consent, or be conditional upon notice to the customer or his prior authorization.

115. Payments to the Bank on account of the guarantee

- 115.1. A guarantee issued by the Bank shall be treated like credit in the amount of the guarantee – plus linkage and/or rate differentials and/or interest as provided in the guarantee and/or applicable to the Bank in respect of the guarantee, plus the expenses applicable to the Bank in respect of the guarantee, including legal costs and advocates' professional fees, and plus the commission that the customer is charged by the Bank in connection with the guarantee as provided below and/or in the Bank's in the tariff of commissions as revised from time to time (hereinafter referred to as "the amount of the guarantee" or "the amount of the guarantees", as the case may be).
- 115.2. In the event that the Bank issues a guarantee at the customer's request – the customer shall compensate and indemnify the Bank for any liability and obligation assumed by or imposed on the Bank, directly or indirectly, in respect of or in connection with such guarantee, and in addition, in respect of all the expenses and damages paid out by or occasioned to the Bank as a result of any liability and obligation as aforesaid.
- Without derogating from the generality of the aforesaid: (1) the customer shall pay the Bank any amount that the Bank pays or is called upon or ordered to pay pursuant to or in connection with any guarantee, in such currency as the Bank paid it, or is called upon or ordered to pay it as aforesaid; for the avoidance of doubt, the customer agrees that if in consequence of any court order the Bank does not pay any amount pursuant to the guarantee on time, and the order is subsequently set aside – the customer shall also compensate the Bank for any additional amounts paid by it in connection with the guarantee, in consequence of the delay, provided that the Bank believed that it was liable to pay such additional amounts; (2) in the event that any legal or other steps are taken against the Bank and/or any of the parties in connection with the guarantee, by any third party or by the customer, or the Bank otherwise becomes involved in any claim or demand relating to the guarantee, and in addition in the event that the Bank sees reason to take any steps in connection with any guarantee as aforesaid – the customer shall indemnify and compensate the Bank immediately upon its first demand for any loss, damage or reasonable expense, including advocates' professional fees, incurred by the Bank in respect of or in connection with the taking of such steps, and shall pay the Bank any amount that the Bank paid, was called upon to pay or ordered to pay any third party in consequence or as a result of any of the aforesaid steps, in the same currency that the Bank paid, was called upon to pay or ordered to pay them as aforesaid.
- 115.3. Amounts due from the customer to the Bank as aforesaid shall be paid by the customer immediately upon the Bank's first demand; nonetheless, the Bank may (without obligation) immediately debit any account of the customer with it in these amounts, on the earliest date on which the Bank pays these amounts or is called upon or ordered to pay them, without having to give notice thereof to the customer. Any debit as aforesaid shall be subject to the provisions of this agreement.
- 115.4. Any amount that the Bank pays, is called upon to pay or ordered to pay pursuant to or in connection with any bank guarantee shall bear maximum interest in respect of the period commencing on the date on which the Bank pays, is called upon to pay or ordered to pay them until its actual payment in full by the customer to the Bank.
- 115.5. Without derogating from the aforesaid, the Bank may at any time call upon the customer to pay it all the amounts that the Bank undertook to pay pursuant to any guarantee issued at the customer's request – even before the Bank is called upon to pay them – and the customer undertakes to pay the Bank all the aforesaid amounts immediately upon its first demand. Without derogating from the generality of the aforesaid, on the occurrence of an event vesting the Bank with a right to call for the immediate payment of the customer's debts and liabilities to the Bank, on any cause, the customer shall be liable to immediately pay the Bank the aforesaid amounts, without the need for prior demand or notice by the Bank. This provision shall apply even prior to the payment date of the guarantees, or some of them, and/or even if the Bank has not yet been called upon to actually pay the amount of the guarantees and/or even if the Bank has not yet actually paid the amount of the guarantees, or some of them. In such case, the customer shall be liable to pay the amount of the guarantees immediately and the Bank shall have all the rights of set-off and lien and the right to realize the collateral as provided above in this agreement and/or any other agreement between the Bank and the customer, in respect of payment of the debt as aforesaid.

Where the customer pays the Bank any amount before the Bank pays the guarantee's beneficiary and thereafter, on its return or the expiry of its validity, whichever is later, it transpires that the amount the Bank was called upon to pay in respect of the guarantee (including any expense, commission and linkage of the Bank and/or borne by it) was less than the amount that the customer paid the Bank, the Bank shall credit the customer's account with the amount of the difference, plus interest as customary at the Bank in respect of such cases at such time.

116. Commission

In addition to any other commission, the customer shall pay the Bank annual commission in respect of the guarantee's issue, in accordance with the Bank's tariff of commissions as may be revised from time to time.

117. Payment of a guarantee by the Bank

- 117.1. A demand for payment of a guarantee given in accordance with its terms and conditions shall serve as adequate proof to the Bank regarding payment of the amount demanded and the Bank need not instruct the guarantee's beneficiary to prove his entitlement to the amount called.
- 117.2. Any payment made by the Bank in accordance with a guarantee shall bind the customer and be accepted by him as adequate proof that the Bank owed the payment.
- 117.3. The customer undertakes not to ask the Bank, at any time and in any circumstances, not to perform a guarantee issued by the Bank at the customer's request vis-à-vis the beneficiary, other than pursuant to a judicial order issued at the request of the customer or a third party against the guarantee's payment.
- 117.4. If the customer and/or any third party applies to court or another judicial instance for the issue of an order restraining the Bank from paying the guarantee, the customer shall bear any expenses incurred by the Bank in connection therewith, regardless of the outcome of the litigation.
- 117.5. In no event may the customer raise any plea against a payment made by the Bank pursuant to this agreement or another agreement with the customer in respect of the guarantee, including pleas and/or defenses by virtue of the Guarantee Law, 5727-1967, pleas to the effect that the Bank might have been exempt from performing the guarantee, or part thereof – by virtue of the law or for any other reason, pleas that the guaranteed obligation is not valid and/or has expired and/or was defective and/or reduced and/or increased, pleas that the Bank paid the guarantee notwithstanding the customer's request not to pay it, pleas that the Bank paid despite the fact that the customer believed that the Bank was not liable to pay the guarantee, pleas that the guarantee's beneficiary caused the non-performance of the obligation to secure which the guarantee was issued and any other plea of whatsoever type.
- 117.6. The customer hereby waives in advance any plea or defense that might be available to it vis-à-vis the Bank in respect of any of the above cases, both prior to the Bank's payment pursuant to any guarantee issued by it pursuant to this agreement, or thereafter.

118. Extension of a guarantee's validity

The Bank may, in its absolute discretion, and subject to notice to the customer, extend the validity of any guarantee issued at the customer's request, and in the event that the Bank does so and in the event that the Bank amends, with the customer's consent, the terms and conditions of any guarantee, the terms and conditions of this document shall apply to any extended or amended guarantee as aforesaid, and the customer shall pay the Bank the commission in respect of the guarantee's issue and/or extension as aforesaid.

119. Collateral and the realization thereof

- 119.2. In addition, the Bank may pay the customer's debt in respect of realization of a bank guarantee issued pursuant to this agreement and/or in respect of a demand for payment pursuant thereto, even if not yet actually paid by the Bank, from any account of the customer at the Bank and/or from any account managed at another bank that is charged in favor of the Bank and/or in respect of which irrevocable instructions to act in this account and/or an assignment of rights in favor of the Bank in respect of such account have been given (hereinafter referred to as "the charged account"). The Bank may also, in its exclusive discretion, transfer monies directly to beneficiaries of the guarantee issued pursuant to this agreement, payment pursuant whereunto has been demanded of the Bank, from the customer's account at the Bank and/or from the charged account, without having to obtain the customer's consent. 117A It is agreed that issuance of a bank guarantee and/or extension its period shall not constitute a consent by the Bank to the issuance of another bank guarantee instead of the guarantee which has been issued and/or in continuation to her and/or in addition to her.

CHAPTER FIVE: GENERAL PROVISIONS GOVERNING ALL TYPES OF CREDIT

Subject to the express terms and conditions of any credit, and insofar as not otherwise specified (in respect of particular provisions regarding particular credit), all the following provisions shall apply to any credit.

Article One: Interest

120. Interest computation methods

The interest on any credit given to the customer shall be computed in accordance with the following rules, unless otherwise provided in the credit request or credit facility request, in this agreement or in the provisions of this chapter:

- 120.1. For the purposes of this clause, "daily debt balance" means the balance of the debt from any source and on any cause that the customer owes the Bank on any day, whether or not all the details thereof have been entered in the account and whether deriving from debits made prior to such date or from debits made on a later date retroactively to such date.
- 120.2. A daily debt balance shall be deemed unpaid if not paid by the date determined by the Bank and in any event by the end of the bank business day.
- 120.3. The unpaid balance of any credit shall bear daily interest, on each occasion at the interest rate applicable on such day, and at the end of each month or at such other interval as determined by the Bank, the interest shall be added to the amount of the credit for the purpose of computing the interest for the next period.
- 120.4. The interest shall be computed in accordance with the number of actual days for which it is payable, having regard to the number of days in such year (365 or 366). If it has been requested or agreed in writing that the principal and interest will be paid in accordance with the Shpizer table or that the interest will be computed in accordance with the Foreign Currency interest rate anchor, the interest will be computed on the basis of a 360 day year.
- 120.5. The interest shall be paid to the Bank on the dates specified in the credit request (and any date for the payment of interest as aforesaid is hereinafter referred to as "the interest payment date"). If dates are not specified in the credit request, or a debt balance arises to the customer's debit without a credit request and without an agreement – the dates for the interest's payment shall be those generally specified by the Bank for the payment of interest on similar credit, and in the absence of similar credit – the interest shall be paid monthly or on the Bank's demand, whichever is earlier.
- 120.6. The first interest payment shall be made in respect of the period from the date of providing any credit to the customer until the next interest payment date after the date of providing the credit, inclusive. On any interest payment date after the aforesaid payment, interest shall be paid in respect of the period that has elapsed from the interest payment date preceding the said interest payment until such interest payment date, inclusive.

Article Two: The Credit's Payment

121. The credit's payment

- 121.1 The customer undertakes to pay the Bank any credit, including principal, interest, linkage, expenses and commission in respect of thereof, precisely and on the dates specified in this agreement and in the credit requests. This clause is of the essence of this agreement and a breach thereof by the customer shall be deemed a fundamental breach of this agreement and/or of any other agreement executed between the customer and the Bank.
- 121.2 The customer undertakes to enable the Bank to collect on the customer's expense all payments that the Bank is entitled to receive from the customer according to this agreement and/or according to the credit applications and or according to any other agreement between him and the Bank, among other things and without detracting from the generality of the above, all principal payments, interest, linkage differences, fees and all ancillary payments specified in the credit applications, directly from the customer's current account at the Bank or at any other commercial bank where the customer's account is maintained (hereinafter: "the other commercial bank"). For this purpose, the customer undertakes to sign an account debit authorization and any other document that may be required by the Bank and/or the other commercial bank to enable the payments to be made as stated above. The customer also undertakes to pay all the expenses and fees that the Bank and/or the other commercial bank will demand from the customer and/or the Bank in connection with the collection as mentioned above. Regarding authorization to debit the customer's current account with the Bank, the customer confirms that he is aware and that he agrees that the interest that will be charged within the current account may exceed the arrears interest specified in the credit applications.
- 121.3 It is clarified that the Bank will not be responsible for any expenses and/or outcomes in the event that the other commercial bank does not transfer any payment to the Bank or transfers any payment late for any reason, except for reasons that depend on the Bank and/or the other commercial bank. Also, in the case where the authorization to debit an account is to debit the customer's current account at the Bank, the Bank will not be responsible for any expenses and/or outcomes in any case that, in light of the state of the customer's current account at the Bank, the Bank will not honor the authorization, without detracting from the generality of the above it is hereby clarified that non-respect of said authorization by the Bank and/or the other commercial bank, regarding any payment and/or part of it for any reason whatsoever, except for reasons that depend on and/or are related to the bank and/or the other commercial bank whether they are under the control of the bank and/or or the other commercial bank, whether or not, will be considered non-payment of the same amount by the customer and will constitute a fundamental violation of this agreement and of the customer's credit requests, and the Bank will be entitled to charge the customer, among other things, return expenses and other expenses, to the extent that these were imposed on the Bank.

- 121.4 The customer hereby agrees that instead of any amount that has not been debited or that has been debited and not honored on the due date, the Bank will be entitled to debit, on any day of the month, the customer's account at the other commercial bank or the account of another person that the Bank has agreed for the debit to be presented at. In any case where the failure to charge is due to a reason beyond the customer's control, the Bank will send the customer a written notice of the new charge date, at least five business days before the charge is made. Making the charge on the new date will be according to the "value" on the date the charge was not honored.

122. The currency of record for the credit's payment

- 122.1. Any credit, principal, interest, linkage and commission shall be paid in the currency specified in the credit request (hereinafter referred to as "the currency of record"). If no currency has been determined as aforesaid, the credit shall be paid in shekels, provided that the Bank may demand that such credit be paid in the currency in which it was provided.
- 122.2. Notwithstanding the aforesaid, the Bank may also accept payment of credit in another currency and/or debit the customer's current account even if such account is managed in a currency that is not the currency of record, in an amount that is sufficient to purchase FC for the credit's payment, as provided below.
- 122.3. Where the credit is paid in a currency other than the currency of record, the Bank may at any time, in its exclusive discretion, convert the amount received in payment of the credit to the currency of record at the sale rate for transfers and checks determined by the Bank for the day of the conversion, and the customer shall bear the costs of the conversion. Any debt balance arising as a result of such conversion shall be added to the unpaid balance of the relevant credit or debited to the customer's current account, in the Bank's discretion, and shall be governed by the relevant provisions of the agreement.

123. Payment of credit from current account

- 123.1. On the date of any payment on account of the credit, including principal, commission, interest, linkage and/or related expenses, as well as any debt or liability of whatsoever type of the customer, the Bank may, without obligation, debit the customer's current account in respect thereof, whether it has a credit balance or a debit balance at such time, or goes into a debit balance and/or unauthorized overdraft as a result of the debit.
- 123.2. Where the Bank credits the account in which the credit was provided and debits the customer's current account, the following provisions shall apply:
- 123.2.1. the loan shall not be deemed paid until the debit balance in the current account deriving from such debit has been paid. This provision shall not apply where the debit balance is within the scope of a credit facility approved by the Bank, provided that there are movements to the credit of the account at least in the amount of the debit, including interest thereon, in the one month period following the debit, and that during the said month the Bank does not take steps to cancel or reduce the credit facility;
- 123.2.2. a debit balance arising in the current account as a result of a debit as aforesaid shall be governed by the ordinary terms and conditions applicable to a debit balance in such account;
- 123.2.3. in the event that the customer is required to discharge a debit balance arising as a result of a debit as aforesaid, and does not do so, the Bank may, in its discretion, treat the debit balance as a default in payment of the original credit in respect whereof the account was debited, from the date of debiting the current account, and default interest as defined in this agreement shall be payable in respect of the entire period until the debit balance's payment.
- 123.3. Without derogating from the generality of the aforesaid, if the Bank reaches the conclusion, at any time, in its discretion – and taking into account acts credited to the account or acts that it knows for sure will be credited to the account – that the account and/or the credit facility that was approved for the customer in the account does not have adequate cover for the aforesaid payment or part thereof, the Bank may cancel the debiting of the account in respect of the aforesaid payment and transfer it, in whole or in part, back to the debit of the loan and/or credit account or a separate account in the customer's name, or any other account of the customer, in the Bank's discretion.

124. Prepayment by or on behalf of the customer

- 124.1. The customer and/or anyone else whose right might be affected by the grant or realization of a guarantee or collateral may not prepay credit granted by the Bank before the specified payment date, save as provided in this agreement. Without prejudice to the generality of the aforesaid, it is agreed that for the purpose of the provisions of section 13(b) of the Pledge Law, 5727-1967, or any other provision amending it, adding thereto or replacing it, neither the customer nor anyone else shall have a right to early redemption or payment of the collateral.
- 124.2. The customer may request, through a written request that shall be given to the Bank in accordance with the Bank's prevailing procedure or as required by law, to pay the credit or any part thereof (hereinafter in this clause referred to as "the request"), in which case the following provisions shall apply:
 - 124.2.1. the customer may pay the amounts due, or some of them, prior to their agreed payment date (hereinafter in this clause referred to as "prepayment"), subject to the payment of prepayment commission and the other terms and conditions customary at the Bank on the date of making any prepayment as aforesaid;
 - 124.2.2. if on the date of making the prepayment there is a legal provision (including Bank of Israel's directives) limiting the amount of the prepayment commission that the Bank may collect, or specifying other terms and conditions for making the prepayment subject to the provisions of such law, the Bank may make the prepayment conditional upon payment of the highest rate/s and/or amount/s for the prepayment commission that is permitted by law on the date of making the prepayment, for such type of credit, and subject to fulfilling the terms of the prepayment according to the provisions of law. In any other case, the Bank may make the prepayment conditional upon the payment of prepayment commission and other payments and other preliminary conditions that in the Bank's opinion reasonably reflect the damage that will be occasioned to it as a result of making the prepayment on such date.
- 124.3. All the amounts credited to the account shall first be used for payment of the Bank's expenses, thereafter for payment of commission, then for payment of the interest and index-linkage or FC linkage and finally for payment of the credit's principal. The Bank may choose another order of crediting the amounts.

125. Call for immediate payment by the Bank

Without derogating from any other right and relief available to the Bank pursuant to any agreement, other document or understanding with the customer or at law, on the occurrence of any one of the following events the Bank may, without obligation, take any one of the following steps:

- 125.1. The events ("events of breach"):
 - 125.1.1. if the customer does not pay the Bank any amount due from him on time or does not perform any financial and/or other obligation to the Bank, and if the Bank has concerns that any debt will not be paid at all or that it will be paid substantially late, or that an obligation will not be performed at all or that it will be performed substantially late;
 - 125.1.2. if it transpires that any of the customer's warranties pursuant to the credit documents and/or any other warranty given to the Bank by the customer is incorrect or inaccurate;
 - 125.1.3. if there is a breach or, in the Bank's opinion, there is reasonable concern regarding the breach or validity of the agreements with the customer or some of them;
 - 125.1.4. if the customer commits any act that amounts to the preference of other creditors over the Bank or if early payment of debts that he owes other creditors is called for;
 - 125.1.5. if the customer does not provide the Bank with any collateral that he undertook to provide, unencumbered by any third party right (save insofar as otherwise agreed in writing with the Bank) or does not insure it as required or does not register the collateral in the relevant registries;
 - 125.1.6. if, notwithstanding the Bank's demand, the customer does not furnish the Bank with additional collateral on the date stipulated by the Bank;
 - 125.1.7. if the customer transfers or charges any collateral he has given the Bank to another, and any collateral that the customer has given the Bank is destroyed, damaged or lost, or the validity thereof is cancelled, or the value of the collateral decreases materially, and the customer does not immediately furnish other collateral to the Bank's satisfaction;

- 125.1.8. if the customer does not furnish the Bank with any document or information he is liable to furnish to the Bank within 14 days of the Bank's demand;
- 125.1.9. if the Bank believes, in its discretion, that an event has occurred that might materially affect the customer's financial ability or the Bank's ability to obtain payment from the customer;
- 125.1.10. without derogating from the generality of the aforesaid, if the customer stops paying its debts to the Bank or others, or in the Bank's opinion there is substantial concern that the customer will not be able to pay these debts, or if the risk of non-payment as aforesaid increases at a significant rate, or his business closes or is substantially limited, or the business license required for the management of a principal business of the customer expires or is cancelled, or the customer sells a material part of his business;
- 125.1.11. if an attachment is imposed that is not removed within 30 days and/or a permanent or provisional receiver or receiver and manager is appointed for an asset of the customer that serves as collateral or for all or some of the amounts standing to the customer's credit; and/or if an application is filed for an appointment as aforesaid and/or an execution act is taken against the customer and/or his property and/or any collateral given as aforesaid and/or in respect of amounts standing to the customer's credit, or if an order to commence proceedings under the Insolvency Law is issued against the customer or if an application to commence proceedings under that law is filed against him;
- 125.1.12. if the customer becomes a restricted customer pursuant to the provisions of the Checks Without Cover Law, 5741-1981;
- 125.1.13. if the customer's business activity, production activity or commercial business is ceased, or materially reduced, and is not fully renewed within 60 days of the cessation, or if the customer's assets or most of them are sold;
- 125.1.14. on the customer's death, legal incapacity, arrest or if he leaves the country or an application is filed for the issue of a receivership order, or an application is filed by the customer or someone else to commence bankruptcy proceedings or the customer approaches his creditors for the purpose of regulating his debts, reaching a compromise regarding the payment of his debts or receiving an extension for the purpose of regulating his debts;
- 125.1.15. in the case of a customer which is a corporation – in addition to the aforesaid, also if: proceedings are instituted against it for its winding up, including voluntary winding up; a winding up resolution is passed by the general meeting; receivership proceedings are instituted in respect of its assets or some of them; the number of members falls below the required minimum; it is struck off from the registry or given notice of the intention to strike it off; the corporation passes a merger resolution, as an absorbing corporation or as an absorbed corporation; suspension proceedings or a creditors' arrangement exist in respect of it; there is a change in the control thereof and/or a change in the composition of the person or organs who or which may pass resolutions on its behalf and if there is a change in the corporation's directors or shareholders; if a transaction is executed with the customer's controlling shareholders in a manner that might materially affect the customer's profitability, property or obligations; or one of the events mentioned in this clause has occurred in respect thereof, and if the corporation is a partnership, if there is a change in the partners or the partners' rights;
- 125.1.16. Any other event in respect of which it is provided in this agreement or any other agreement with the customer that it will constitute a breach or vest the Bank with a right to take any of the steps mentioned below.
- 125.2. The steps that the Bank may take (in addition to any other step and relief pursuant to agreement or law):
 - 125.2.1. refuse to provide the customer with any additional credit, even if it has undertaken to do so;
 - 125.2.2. Call for the immediate payment of the balance of the credit and/or any debt of the customer or part thereof, and take any steps for the purpose of exercising any right of the Bank and for the purpose of realizing the charge and all the collateral in favor of the Bank. If the Bank calls for the immediate payment of the credit or part thereof and/or a debt of the customer or part thereof, as aforesaid, the customer shall pay the Bank, immediately and without the need for any further notice, the full amount called for immediate payment, including any interest, linkage, expenses and commission in respect thereof and any expense incurred by the Bank in respect of the event of breach and for the purpose of collecting the debt that has arisen;
 - 125.2.3. Raise the interest rate on the credit or any part thereof to such rate as determined by the Bank in its exclusive discretion, provided that it shall not be higher than the default interest rate that the Bank may charge on the credit (hereinafter referred to as "new interest rate"). The new interest rate shall apply to the credit from the date of the Bank's notice until payment in full of the credit and any interest, commission and expense in respect thereof or until the date on which the Bank gives notice, in writing, of the new interest rate's cancellation.

- 125.2.4. Notwithstanding the aforesaid, the Bank shall not call the balance of the credit and/or the customer's debt, all or part of them, for immediate repayment, unless it first sends the borrower a written warning 21 business days in advance of its intention to do so, except in special cases in the circumstances of which there is a need to act without delay, all subject to any law.
- 125.3. A decision and act of the Bank as aforesaid shall not derogate from the customer's obligation to rectify the event of breach immediately or from the Bank's rights pursuant to any agreement and law.
- 125.4. In any case in which notice is required, notice of three days in advance shall be deemed adequate. Notwithstanding the aforesaid, if the Bank believes that there is substantial concern that the customer's payment ability will be affected and/or that the Bank's ability to obtain payment from the customer will be affected as a result of the grant of notice as aforesaid, it may call for the immediate payment of the balance of the credit and/or the debt without notice, subject to the provisions of any law that may not be qualified. The customer shall not have a right of prepayment of any debt or right or other benefit as a result of the existence of an event of breach as aforesaid.

Article Three: General Provisions

126. Default interest and interest in legal claims

- 126.1. Any amount due to the Bank from the customer that is not paid at the time specified for the payment thereof or that is not paid on the Bank's first demand, where the Bank may call for payment on demand or early payment of the interest and/or credit, shall bear, in respect of the period from the date specified for its payment until its actual payment in full, interest at the default interest rate specified in the credit request or in the credit agreement relating to the credit, and if default interest is not specified as aforesaid or cannot be charged in accordance with the provisions of the law:

- 126.2. To the extent the Fair Credit Law applies to the credit, the interest on arrears known on the date of execution of the contract shall not exceed the maximum rate of interest on arrears known on that date.
- 126.3. Maximum interest on arrears – is the maximum cost of the credit multiplied by 1.2, calculated on an annual basis.
- 126.4. For the avoidance of doubt, it is expressed that the Bank's right to interest as aforesaid and the actual collection thereof shall not derogate from its right to take or continue taking all the steps available to it pursuant to this agreement and/or any other agreement or understanding with the customer and/or any law for the purpose of collecting any amount not paid to it by the customer on time or on the Bank's demand.
- 126.5. Where the Bank files a claim against the customer for the payment of any liability, it may claim in respect of such amount, at its election, from the date on which the cause of action arose or from the date of filing the claim, until the date on which the amount is actually paid, default interest as aforesaid, having regard to the type of liability, or the maximum interest permitted pursuant to the Adjudication of Interest and Linkage Law, 5721-1981, or any law replacing it, and the customer agrees to the court ordering as aforesaid. It is agreed that the interest rate on an FC debt shall for the purposes of this Law be 11%, unless provided otherwise in the Law.

127. Commission and expenses

- 127.1. The Bank may also debit the account, in addition to interest, with commission as provided in the credit request, and any other commission relating to the credit's provision and management and/or the services provided by the Bank in the course of the credit's provision, in accordance with the Bank's tariff as shall be from time to time, which shall be published as required by law. The Bank's tariff shall be available for the customer's inspection at the Bank's branches or as required by law.

- 127.2. Subject to any law, the Bank may from time to time debit the account with various expenses and commission, in such amounts and at such times as prevailing at the Bank at such time, including non-execution commission, collateral and/or credit handling fees, commission on the handling of attachments or decisions of a court or other competent authority that are imposed on connection with the account and any expenses involved in collecting a debt of the customer and/or realizing collateral, including advocates' professional fees.
- 127.3. Such commissions will be charged according to the Bank's tariff of commissions as may vary from time to time. The customer agrees that the Bank will be entitled, subject to the provisions of the law, to alter the tariff of commissions, and included in this to add and/or to change amounts thereof and/or a revaluation of commissions and/or tariffs and/or to add commissions.
- 127.4. It is agreed that nothing in the foregoing shall derogate from the Bank's right to collect expenses and/or commissions which do not appear in the tariff of commissions, all subject to any law.

128. Notice of determination of and change in commission and interest rates

Whenever notice must be given of the determination of or change in interest or commission pursuant to the provisions of this part or at law, even if personal notice is not given to the customer of the determination or change as aforesaid, the delivery or publication of the notice to the customer of the change and of the date of its commencement in the Bank's customary manner (insofar as such manner is permitted by law) or publication of the determination or change in the manner required by law shall be deemed the grant of notice to the customer.

129. Debiting of special expenses

- 129.1. The customer undertakes that all the payments made by the customer shall be free of and unencumbered by any tax and deduction, without any set-off or counterclaim and without any deductions in respect of or on account of any set-off or counterclaim.
- 129.2. Where any levy, tax, fee or other compulsory payment is imposed on the credit or on the credit's provision, the amount of such levy, tax, fee or other compulsory payment, insofar as relating to the credit, shall be borne by the customer, in addition to any expense, commission or interest pursuant to this agreement and any other agreement or understanding between the Bank and the customer.
- 129.3. The Bank's right to demand a cost supplement, accelerate payment or convert credit:
- 129.3.1. The Bank shall give notice thereof to the customer and suggest written terms and conditions to the customer that in the Bank's opinion are, from a financial point of view, a suitable alternative to these terms and conditions. If the customer agrees to these terms and conditions within 30 days ("the interim period"), the validity of the arrangement shall be retroactive from the date of the Bank's notice. If the customer does not agree to the arrangement, the Bank may refuse to provide the credit to the customer, in whole or in part, and if the credit or any part thereof has already been provided to the customer, the customer shall pay the Bank, at the end of the interim period, without any demand by the Bank, the unpaid balance of the credit (plus interest), provided that if any interest payment date falls within the interim period, the customer shall pay the Bank, instead of interest as provided in the credit request, an amount that in the Bank's opinion is such as to compensate it for the credit's continuation during that part of the interim period that falls after the interest payment date as aforesaid. If the customer does not pay the Bank the unpaid balance of the credit and the amount of the compensation or part thereof on such date, he shall pay the Bank, in respect thereof, an amount that in the Bank's opinion is such as to compensate it for the default period plus 10% per annum on the amount of the compensation.
- 129.3.2. If as a result of any change in the law (as defined below) or as a result of compliance with any demand, order or request given or addressed to the Bank by Bank of Israel or another competent authority, or as a result of performing an obligation, order, demand or request deriving from any change in the law as aforesaid or from an agreement made from time to time, between the Bank and Bank of Israel or another competent authority:
- 129.3.2.1. the Bank is compelled to hold or deposit any FC, IC or liquid assets or the amount of any FC or IC or the value of any liquid assets that the Bank is liable to hold or deposit are increased; or
- 129.3.2.2. the amount of the credit that the Bank may provide or continue or the amount of the deposits that the Bank may place with others are restricted or reduced

129.3.2.3. any demands are imposed on or apply to the Bank (or any change occurs that in the Bank's opinion amounts, so far as it is concerned, to any requirements becoming stricter) with regard to the ratio between the Bank's reserves, on the one hand, and the credit that the Bank may provide or continue providing or assets or deposits that the Bank may hold or receive, on the other hand; or

129.3.2.4. any restrictive conditions are imposed on or apply to the Bank (or any change occurs that in the Bank's opinion amounts, so far as it is concerned, to any condition or restriction becoming stricter) in connection with the London inter-bank Euro market or in connection with the Bank's business or acts on the aforesaid market (without derogating from the other cases detailed above in this clause); or

129.3.2.5. interest, fines, levies or other payments are imposed or apply to the Bank or the Bank is required to pay them, other than in consequence of omissions of the Bank (or any change occurs that in the Bank's opinion amounts, so far it is concerned, to these payment requirements becoming stricter);

and the Bank determines that as a result of all or any of the aforesaid there will be an increase in its costs or expenses in connection with the credit's provision (in whole or in part) or in connection with the credit's continued provision (in whole or in part) or a reduction in the amounts of the principal and interest that the Bank is entitled to receive in connection with the credit, in which case (that is to say, in any of the cases mentioned above) the Bank may refuse to provide the credit, in whole or in part, to the customer. If the Bank has provided the credit facilities – the customer shall pay the Bank, from time to time, on the Bank's first demand, an amount that in the Bank's opinion is such as to compensate it for the increase in the Bank's costs and expenses in connection with the credit or the reduction in the principal and interest as aforesaid, and the amount of the compensation as determined by the Bank from time to time as aforesaid shall bind the customer; however, if the Bank demands compensation from the customer in accordance with this paragraph, the customer may, with the prior approval of the competent authorities in Israel (if such approval is required by law) pay the Bank the entire unpaid balance of the credit, provided that the following three conditions are fulfilled:

- (a) the customer gives the Bank at least 15 days' written notice of his intention to pay the Bank the entire unpaid balance of the credit (plus interest); and
- (b) the entire unpaid balance of the credit (plus interest) is paid by the customer on any interest payment date (but not before 15 days) as provided in paragraph (a) above); and
- (c) together with the discharge of the unpaid balance of the credit (plus interest) and in addition thereto, the customer pays the Bank the compensation mentioned above, in respect of the period originating with the event noted in the Bank's said demand until payment of the entire unpaid balance of the credit (plus interest) and for the purposes of this paragraph the expression "change in the law" means a change in the State of Israel and/or any other country of any law, regulation, order, directive or rule or a change as aforesaid in the interpretation of the aforesaid by any court, tribunal or other authority in such country that is entrusted with the execution or performance of such law, regulation, order, direction or rule.

129.3.3. If at any time the Bank determines (and a determination as aforesaid shall bind the customer) that as a result of any change in the local and/or international money market and/or any change for the worse in the credit rating of the Bank and/or the country there will be a reduction in the sources available for providing FC credit and/or impairment of the Bank's ability to finance itself in the FC credit currency, the Bank may refuse to provide the FC credit, or part thereof, to the customer, or if the FC credit, or part thereof, has already been provided to the customer, the Bank may, in its discretion, convert the FC credit into IC credit, by providing IC credit, as the case may be, in the amount required to cover all the amounts due at such time on account of the relevant credit the consideration for which will be credited to the existing credit account. The credit shall be converted at the Bank's customary rate on the date of the conversion and the terms and conditions thereof shall be as similar as possible to the terms and conditions of the original FC credit. The rate of the interest on the IC credit shall be as agreed between the Bank and the customer. If the parties are unable to reach agreement within seven days, the Bank may demand the immediate discharge of the unpaid balance of the credit (plus interest) and if the customer does not discharge the unpaid balance of the credit to the Bank, the Bank may convert the credit as aforesaid, and the rate of the interest on the IC credit shall be the maximum interest customary in respect of similar IC credit. It is expressed that for the purposes of the aforesaid conversion, the customer shall not be liable for payment of the exchange commission charged by the Bank on the purchase or sale of FC.

- 129.3.4. If at any time the Bank determines (and a determination as aforesaid shall bind the customer) that as a result of any change in the law the provision of the credit, or part thereof, to the customer, or if the credit, or part thereof, has already been provided to the customer – the credit's continuation, becomes illegal, impossible or impractical for the Bank, the Bank may refuse to provide the credit, or part thereof, to the customer, or if the credit, or part thereof, has already been provided to the customer – the Bank may demand that the customer discharge the unpaid balance of the credit (plus interest), and the customer undertakes to pay the Bank all the aforesaid amounts within 30 days of the Bank's first demand, provided that in the said demand it is noted that the demand is based on the provisions of this paragraph.

130. Attribution of payments

- 130.1. Any payment and amount received from or for the customer shall be applied in the following order: firstly, towards payment of all the expenses occasioned in connection with such payment's collection; secondly, towards payment of all the expenses and commission due to the Bank; then, towards payment of all the interest due to the Bank and the linkage thereon; and then, towards payment of the credit principal and the principal of any debt due to the Bank. The provisions of this clause shall prevail over any instruction given by the customer or anyone who has transferred the payment for the customer.
- 130.2. Deleted.
- 130.3. The Bank may hold any amount and/or payment received prior to the payment date of the debt amounts, or some of them, in the account, without being under a duty to use it to reduce the debt amounts, even if the amount and/or payment were allocated for such object by the person entitled to allocate them. In addition, the Bank may also transfer the credit balance to the account without notice to the customer or without obtaining the customer's consent.

131. Prohibition of merger

- 131.1. The customer undertakes (if the customer is a corporation) not to merge, undertake to merge or take any steps towards a merger with another/other corporation/s without the prior written consent of the Bank. For such purpose, the customer undertakes to immediately furnish the Bank with all the information and documents needed by the Bank, in its discretion, in relation to the requested merger, for the purpose of determining its position thereon.
- "Merger" for the purposes of this document means a merger pursuant to Part Eight or Part Nine of the Companies Law, 5759-1999 and/or any act the result of which is the acquisition of most of the customer's assets by an individual or corporation, or pursuant whereto the customer directly or indirectly acquires most of the assets of another corporation or shares of another corporation vesting it with control thereof. For the purposes of this clause, "control" bears the meaning attributed to it in the Securities Law, 5728-1968.

132. The customer's books of account and the furnishing of financial statements

- 132.1. The customer undertakes to regularly and routinely keep full and proper books of account in accordance with the law and the Bank is irrevocably authorized, at all times, to inspect and examine the books. Without derogating from the aforesaid, the customer undertakes to furnish the Bank, on its first demand, with any balance sheet, statement, account ledger, card, magnetic substrate, film, book, written support, other document and any information and explanation in connection with the customer, as well as information in connection with its financial, operating, property and business position, as required by the Bank. The Bank is irrevocably authorized to contact the customer's accountants and obtain all the aforesaid from them, subject to notice to the customer.
- 132.2. It is hereby clarified and agreed that the failure to furnish statements on time shall constitute, inter alia, a breach of Bank of Israel's directives, and the customer agrees that in such case he shall pay the Bank compensation in the amount that the Bank decides is a reflection of the additional cost occasioned to it as a result of a breach as aforesaid. The aforesaid does not constitute permission to the customer to default in furnishing the financial statements or derogate from any other right of the Bank in an event of breach.

133. The customer agrees that the Bank will be entitled to demand references regarding the sources of receipts(incoming payments?) and/or payments that will reach the Bank from the customer and/or on his behalf, and that in any case where references are not provided to the Bank to its satisfaction, the Bank will be entitled not to accept said receipts and/or payments from the customer, and to the extent that the payments were received for the purpose of repaying the customer's credit, he will still be obligated to pay them to the Bank, and this without deducting the rest of the customer's liabilities towards the Bank according to this agreement and according to any agreement made between him and the Bank. The customer waives any claim and/or plea against the Bank in connection with non-acceptance of receipts and/or payments as stated in this section.

134. Obligations concerning interested parties

The customer (if the customer is a corporation) undertakes not to grant interested parties and/or related persons and/or entities any loans and/or assistance for the receipt of credit and not to create any guarantees in their favor, without the prior written consent of the Bank; not to however repay or pay any interested party any loan and/or monies lent by its shareholders to the customer or any amounts invested in the customer by the shareholders, without the prior written consent of the Bank.

If the customer is paid any amounts on account of its share capital, it shall notify the Bank thereof immediately and transfer them to the Bank and they shall be used for payment on account of the customer's debts and liabilities to the Bank;

The customer undertakes to notify the interested parties of the customer's obligations to the Bank pursuant to this clause.

PART FOUR: ACTIVITY IN SECURITIES

CHAPTER ONE: APPLICABILITY AND DEFINITIONS

135. Applicability

- 135.1. If the customer wishes to carry on activity in securities, and the Bank agrees, in its exclusive discretion and without being under a duty to do so, to carry on the activity for the customer and/or to provide him with the requested services or some of them, of whatsoever type, the provisions of this part shall apply, in addition to the other provisions of this agreement.
- 135.2. In addition, where the customer's activity in securities involves any credit exposure for the Bank, including activity of the customer other than from the credit balance in his account, short activity or loan activity and any other activity that creates credit exposure for the Bank, the giving of an instruction by the customer to act as aforesaid shall constitute his consent that the relevant provisions of the part dealing with credit shall apply to him. The aforesaid does not oblige the Bank to execute instructions of the customer to which it has not expressly consented.
- 135.3. Without derogating from the aforesaid, it is agreed that certain services require the signature of additional documents by him, and the customer undertakes to sign these documents and to act in accordance with their provisions as a condition for the activity.

CHAPTER TWO: GIVING OF INSTRUCTIONS AND EXECUTION OF ACTS

137. The customer's instructions according to law

135.1 It is hereby clarified to the customer and he agrees that in addition to the provisions of the general law, transactions in securities are also governed by the rules and/or regulations of the stock exchange and/or clearing house on or through which the securities the subject of the transaction are traded and/or cleared, as the case may be (which are all for the purposes of this part referred to as "the relevant law"), and the customer undertakes to give the Bank instructions that are consistent with the relevant law. Without derogating from the aforesaid, the customer agrees that the Bank shall not be obliged to execute any transaction that is contrary to the relevant law or any part thereof.

138. Prohibition on the giving of instructions that result in an unauthorized overdraft

138.1. It is agreed that so long as the Bank has not approved a credit facility request in writing, the customer may only execute a transaction in securities in the framework and to the limit of the credit balance in the account. Where the bank has approved a credit facility for the customer for the purpose of activity in securities, the customer may only execute a transaction in securities within the scope of the approved credit facility, as defined in this agreement, and subject to the terms and conditions thereof.

138.2. The customer undertakes to ensure that whenever he gives an instruction to execute a transaction in securities – the account shall have sums of money adequate for the execution of his instruction and/or ensuring that there is no deviation from the approved credit facility for the purpose of activity in securities, as shall be from time to time, and that the account has suitable collateral for the instruction's execution as agreed with the customer, and in the absence of agreement – as customary at the Bank in respect of transactions of such type ("suitable collateral").

138.3. If the customer gives an instruction or makes a request the execution of which would result in a debit balance in the account, or an increase in the debit balance in the account, or a deviation from the credit facility approved for him (if approved) by the Bank, or in the absence of suitable collateral as aforesaid, the Bank may, without obligation, at any time including after receiving the customer's instruction, act in one or more of the following ways, without having to give notice:

138.3.1. refuse to execute the instruction, or part thereof, as aforesaid;

138.3.2. in the case of a standing order to buy securities – stop it;

138.3.3. in the case of a purchase instruction and sale instruction, refuse to execute the purchase instruction before execution of the sale instruction and receipt of consideration covering the cost of the purchase instruction.

The Bank may act as provided in this clause even if it has already agreed to execute the instruction and/or request (unless it has agreed expressly and in writing to the said deviation), and even if it has undertaken to perform the act vis-à-vis another party, and the customer shall be liable to the Bank for any damage occasioned to the Bank as a result of the non-execution or partial execution of the acts.

138.3.4. Without derogating from the aforesaid, the Bank may honor any instruction or request pursuant to this clause, in whole or in part, and such shall not be deemed consent by it to grant the customer a credit facility, grant the customer credit in another case or act without suitable collateral. Where the Bank honors an instruction or request as aforesaid, the following provisions shall apply:

138.3.4.1. the customer shall be liable to pay the debit balance arising in the account immediately, and the provisions of the chapter dealing with credit in this agreement shall apply to such deviation;

138.3.4.2. in the event of a collateral deficiency, the customer shall be liable to immediately deposit the suitable collateral in the account;

138.3.4.3. without derogating from the aforesaid, the Bank may sell securities purchased by the customer or allotted to him pursuant to such instruction without notice to the customer and/or sell all or some of the other securities that the customer has at the Bank, if any, at any time and at any price the Bank deems fit, in its exclusive discretion, and use the consideration received from the sale (less commission and any tax, levy or compulsory payment applicable at any time to a sale as aforesaid) for the full or partial discharge of the said debit balance.

These rights shall be in addition to, and without derogation from, the Bank's right to take other steps, including all the relief available to it in the case of an event of breach of this agreement.

138.3.5. The customer agrees that whenever he gives the Bank a sale instruction, it shall not be under a duty to check whether the securities the subject of the sale instruction, or any part thereof, are actually in the account. Accordingly, if it transpires that the account does not have all or some of the securities detailed in the sale instruction, the Bank may, without obligation, buy back the lacking securities for the customer on such dates and at such prices as the Bank deems fit, and debit the account with the price of the securities plus commission and expenses, after the Bank makes an attempt, insofar as possible in the circumstances of the case, to give advance notice thereof to the customer.

139. Buying on issue

- 139.1. The customer undertakes to give the Bank an instruction to buy on issue only after learning of the terms and conditions of the prospectus.
- 139.2. The customer undertakes and agrees to accept securities he has requested to buy in the framework of a buy on issue instruction, in accordance with the terms and conditions of the prospectus, subject to the provisions of the corporate documents of the company which issued the securities, and in accordance with the issue's outcome.
- 139.3. Without prejudice to the generality of the aforesaid, it is hereby clarified to the customer and he agrees that a delay in executing any instruction to purchase on issue may be caused, inter alia, in consequence of loads on the means used for the relay of instructions and/or computer malfunctions and/or other circumstances that are not in the Bank's control.

140. Execution of instructions

The customer agrees as follows:

- 140.1. In the event that the Bank carries on activity in securities for him, his account shall be credited or debited in accordance with the financial acts required to carry on the activity, including in respect of ancillary expenses and commission.
- 140.2. The Bank may make the execution of an instruction of the customer conditional upon the customer doing any act that to the best of its understanding is necessary to enable the instruction's execution.
- 140.3. The execution of any instruction received by the Bank after the close of trade on the Bank's business day and of any act the execution date of which falls on a day that is not a business day (for transactions with securities) shall be postponed until the next business day.
- 140.4. Cancellation or postponement in consequence of the cessation of trade:
 - 140.4.1. In the event of the cessation of trade:
 - 140.4.1.1. a daily instruction for the purchase or sale of a security that has not yet been executed at the time of the cessation of trade shall be deemed cancelled, unless trade is renewed on that same day and the instruction may be executed on that day;
 - 140.4.1.2. an instruction for the future sale or purchase of a security that is conditional upon the price of the security (which is also known as an ongoing instruction) shall be executed on the first trading day, after the end of the cessation of trade, on which the condition is fulfilled, provided that the validity of the conditional instruction did not expire by then.
 - 140.4.2. "Cessation of trade" means the cessation of trade in the security the subject of the instruction or the general cessation of trade on the stock exchange on which such security was traded, for any reason.
- 140.5. The Bank may, without obligation, refuse to execute an instruction given to it by the customer in accordance with the provisions of this agreement if in the circumstances of the case, in its discretion, the instruction's execution is not possible, or is not possible within a reasonable period of time, or the instruction arrives after the time for its execution, or is not sufficiently understandable or clear or lacks details, or is inconsistent with the Bank's procedures or is of a type of instructions that the Bank does not execute, or is inconsistent with the provisions of any agreement between the customer and the Bank, or is contrary to the provisions of any law, including the relevant law, or there is any other legal impediment to its execution.
- 140.6. Without derogating from the aforesaid, where the customer gives an instruction to execute a transaction with a security the negotiability of which is not high and/or with foreign securities that are traded off the stock exchange and/or with foreign securities that are cleared through bond clearing houses in Europe, there might be situations in which there is a delay in the transaction's execution or the transaction is not executed or is executed partially and/or is executed as customary on the markets on which these securities are cleared.

141. Execution through communication systems

- 141.1. The customer authorizes the Bank to also provide all or some of the services through communication systems, as defined in this agreement. To the extent no liability applies to the Bank by virtue of the law, the customer acknowledges and agrees that the Bank shall be exempt from liability for any damage, loss or expense (hereinafter referred to as "damage") that might be occasioned to the customer as a result of the use of communication systems, provided that the Bank used the communication systems reasonably and that the damage was occasioned other than as a result of the Bank's negligence, including, but without derogating from the generality of the aforesaid, in respect of any one of the following:

141.1.1. a malfunction in the communication systems and any consequence thereof, including in the definition, relay, reception and/or execution of the information and instructions, and including the timing of the relay and execution. "Malfunction in the communication systems" for the purposes of this clause includes any fault, shutdown or malfunction in the Bank's communication systems to which the information and instructions are relayed, in the communication lines between them and in any equipment involved therein;

141.1.2. the exposure and/or disclosure of information to any third party as a result of the communication systems' use.

141.2. The Bank undertakes to make a reasonable effort in the circumstances of the case in order to repair any malfunction or fault in the communication systems and to reduce any damage as aforesaid.

142. Custody of securities

142.1. The Bank may hold securities purchased for the customer at the Bank or anywhere else, in its discretion, and it may hold any type of security together with other securities of the same type that are held by the Bank and divide them from time to time into groups for the purpose of redemption or for any other purpose, in the Bank's discretion and having regard to the convenience of handling these securities.

142.2. If the Bank holds securities of the customer together with other securities, it may return to the customer, instead of the securities deposited by the customer, other securities of the same type as those deposited by the customer for the Bank's custody.

142.3. Insofar as required for the purpose of trading in securities in accordance with the customer's instructions or for the purpose of exercising the Bank's rights, the Bank may (without obligation) act to register securities with the relevant registration company, in accordance with the prevailing arrangements of the Tel Aviv Stock Exchange and the banks.

142.4. In addition, the Bank may deposit the securities in the account at any time in its name with the Tel Aviv Stock Exchange Clearing House.

142.5. The customer shall sign all the relevant transfer deeds and other documents and furnish them to the Bank on its first demand, insofar as necessary, in the Bank's exclusive discretion, to enable the Bank to carry on activity in securities or otherwise handle securities in accordance with the provisions of the customer's agreements with the Bank.

143. Collection of income and redemption of securities

143.1. The Bank may return securities that have matured or become redeemable against the receipt of payment of their consideration.

143.2. The Bank may collect, for the customer, any interest, dividend, redeemable principal and other income due in respect of securities deposited in the account, from time to time, on their payment date, and the consideration received in respect thereof shall be credited to the account until additional instructions are received from the customer. The Bank may, without obligation, deduct any tax, commission or expense applicable to the said payments or the customer and credit the customer's account with the net consideration.

143.3. Without derogating from the aforesaid, the Bank may, without obligation, make payments or pay expenses, including taxes, in accordance with payment calls on account of securities or in connection with collection of the securities' consideration or the dividend or interest coupons or any other matter relevant to securities, and all the aforesaid expenses and payments shall be debited to the customer. The Bank shall be exempt from any liability for the aforesaid payments not being made at all or not being made on time or in the correct manner, save insofar as the aforesaid derives from the breach of a legal duty of the Bank or the Bank's negligence.

144. Rules regarding convertibles and rights

144.1. Whenever the customer is able to exercise a right deriving from the holding of any securities (such as a right to exercise an option, a conversion right or a purchase right), he shall instruct the Bank in advance how to act until such time as determined by the Bank.

144.2. The customer agrees that so long as the Bank does not receive another notice from the customer in accordance with the provisions of this agreement, the Bank shall sell, without warning and/or notice to the customer, options and/or rights in the account on the last trading day of such options and/or rights, before the final expiry thereof. The customer waives, in a final and absolute waiver, any plea and/or demand and/or claim against the Bank due to or in connection with any expense and/or damage and/or loss which may be caused to it as a result of the above-mentioned sale.

144.3. Without derogating from the aforesaid, it is expressed that the Bank shall not be liable to give notice of the exercise, conversion, expiry date or ways of acting available to the customer, save insofar as required by law. It is expressed that the Bank shall not be liable to give notice in respect of convertibles purchased less than 21 days prior to the date of the conversion or expiry, and liability in such regard shall rest with the customer alone. The customer shall not have any plea, demand and/or claim vis-à-vis the Bank in such regard and/or by reason of the fact that he did not exercise the convertibles on time. For the purposes of this clause, "convertibles" means convertible bonds and/or warrants.

145. Foreign securities

- 145.1. Subject to the control of foreign currency directives and the provisions of any law, as shall be from time to time, transactions with foreign securities shall also be governed by the provisions of this chapter.
- 145.2. For the purposes of this part –
- 145.2.1. "the relevant market" – the foreign stock exchange / foreign regulated market on which the foreign security is traded;
- 145.2.2. "the foreign law" – the law governing the relevant market, including regulations, rules, trading procedures and directives of the foreign stock exchange / foreign regulated market and/or relevant market's clearing house, as well as any custom and practice on the relevant market;
- 145.2.3. "the performing entities", "the entities" – the entities which execute the transaction or any part thereof, including the holding of the foreign security, inter alia stock exchange agents, banks, dealers, brokers, investment companies, financial institutions and/or other entities acting for the Bank in Israel or overseas.
The customer acknowledges that the securities will be cleared by these entities or by clearing houses operating on the relevant market or in relation to securities traded thereon, and that they will be held by one of the said entities and/or clearing houses entitled to hold the securities (custodians) which operate on the relevant market or in relation to securities traded thereon.
- 145.3. In respect of any instruction, act or transaction with foreign securities, the customer agrees that any instruction given by him shall also be subject to the foreign law and that he shall not act in foreign securities without understanding the provisions of the foreign law relevant to such security.
- 145.4. Without derogating from the aforesaid, in the event that the customer wishes to execute transactions with foreign securities, the transactions' execution shall also be subject to the foreign law and the provisions of the agreements between the Bank and the performing entities which execute the said transaction for the Bank, as shall be from time to time.
- 145.5. It is agreed that the policy for arranging custodian services for securities abroad over the assets of the Bank and its customers, including criteria for selecting the executing parties as aforesaid who are entitled to hold the securities (custodians), is to be found on the Bank's website at the address: www.bankjerusalem.co.il.
- 145.6. If securities are traded on more than one foreign stock exchange or market, and if the customer does not instruct the Bank otherwise, the Bank may execute the customer's instructions on the foreign stock exchange or market elected by the Bank, in its exclusive discretion.
- 145.7. It is agreed that instructions relating to overseas securities shall or might be executed through the performing entities. The customer hereby authorizes the Bank to contract with the entities or any of them in its discretion in connection with the execution of transactions with foreign securities or any of them, and in connection with the securities' custody. The customer agrees that the performing entities are not obliged to hold the customer's securities separately from the securities of other customers of the Bank, and that the securities shall be held in the manner customary in the place where they are held and subject to the governing law there, including according to street name and not in the name of the Bank or the customer. It is hereby further clarified to the customer that the performing entities are acting in accordance with the governing law in the place of their activity, and in accordance with the rules of conduct of each and every entity. The customer exempts the Bank from liability for any damage, expense and/or loss occasioned to him, if at all, in consequence of the entities' activity, provided that the Bank acted reasonably and save for any damage, expense or loss resulting from the Bank's negligence.
- 145.8. Without derogating from the aforesaid, it is agreed that insofar as the Bank interacts with any entity at the customer's request, the customer shall be solely liable for such entity's activity, including for any damage, expense or loss occasioned to him, if at all, in consequence of such entity's activity or the interaction with it.
- 145.9. The price demanded by the performing entities as the purchase price, or the price reported by them as the security's sale price, shall bind the customer vis-à-vis the Bank for all intents and purposes, even if different, better prices are listed for the security on the purchase date or the sale date, as the case may be, on the relevant market or elsewhere, and even if the said security was purchased or sold at better prices by others, including the Bank, for its customers.

- 145.10. The customer's account shall be credited or debited, as the case may be, with the consideration for the transactions executed in the account only after the Bank is actually credited or debited, and any credit or debit of the account prior thereto, if at all, shall be deemed a conditional credit or debit only.
- 145.11. The customer undertakes to bear all payments, commission and expenses in connection with the execution of his instructions. Without derogating from the aforesaid, the customer undertakes to bear any commission demanded by the entities, including commission or expenses demanded by the entities in respect of "company events" (such as dividend, payment of interest and the like) and in respect of foreign securities held by them, and these payments shall be deemed expenses relating to the securities.
- 145.12. All the payments due to the Bank or the performing entities that are denominated in foreign currency shall be paid by the customer in foreign currency from the account at the Bank that is managed in such foreign currency. If the customer does not have such an account or it does not have an adequate balance, or if the customer instructs the Bank to do so, the Bank may make the payment at the customer's expense in foreign currency and do any act required for such purpose, including purchase the foreign currency required for the customer against Israeli currency at the highest exchange rate at which the Bank sells checks denominated in the aforesaid foreign currency to the public (plus any purchase commission in respect of the foreign currency as customary at the Bank). The purchase as aforesaid shall be done on the day on which the securities are purchased, or on the day on which the Bank is required to make the payments due in respect of the securities' purchase, or on the day of their actual payment by the customer, in accordance with the highest price. If the said payments are made by the customer in parts, the above provisions shall apply to each and every payment.
- 145.13. All the payments received to the customer's credit that are converted into Israeli currency, in accordance with the customer's instructions or in accordance with the law, shall be converted by the Bank in accordance with the lowest rate at which the Bank purchases checks denominated in the foreign currency in which the payment is denominated from the public, on the date on which the foreign currency is actually converted into Israeli currency. From the amounts in Israeli currency received on the foreign currency's conversion, the Bank shall deduct all its commission on the purchase of foreign currency from the public as customary at the Bank at such time.

146. Charge and power of attorney

- 146.1.
